Category and root strength

01 THE CATEGORY · THE CATEGORY RISK · REFERENCE CLUBS · 02 ROOT STRENGTH

IN THIS PART

No club of this kind exists in Iran. The Vault takes share from nobody; it creates a category that does not yet exist here — and the category is explained by the room. not by us.

01 The category — There is no competitor. 005

The category risk — A damaged word. 007

02 Root strength 008

01 — THE CATEGORY

There is no competitor.

No club of this kind exists in Iran. The Vault takes share from nobody; it creates a category that does not yet exist here — and the category is explained by the room, not by us. The founders explain it to the people they nominate.

What the club replaces is not a rival but a habit: the evening a member spends today at the best restaurant in the city, in a hotel bar, in their own house or office — or does not spend at all.

THE HABIT IT REPLACES

TODAY'S EVENING	IS A CLUB	REMEMBERS	CHOOSES THE COMPANY
The best restaurant in the city	—	—	—

Their own house or office	—	—	—
No evening at all	—	—	—
The Vault	●	●	●

None of those is a club. None of them remembers. None of them chooses the company.

REFERENCE CLUBS, NOT COMPETITORS

We borrow the standard, not the aesthetic.

THE CATEGORY RISK

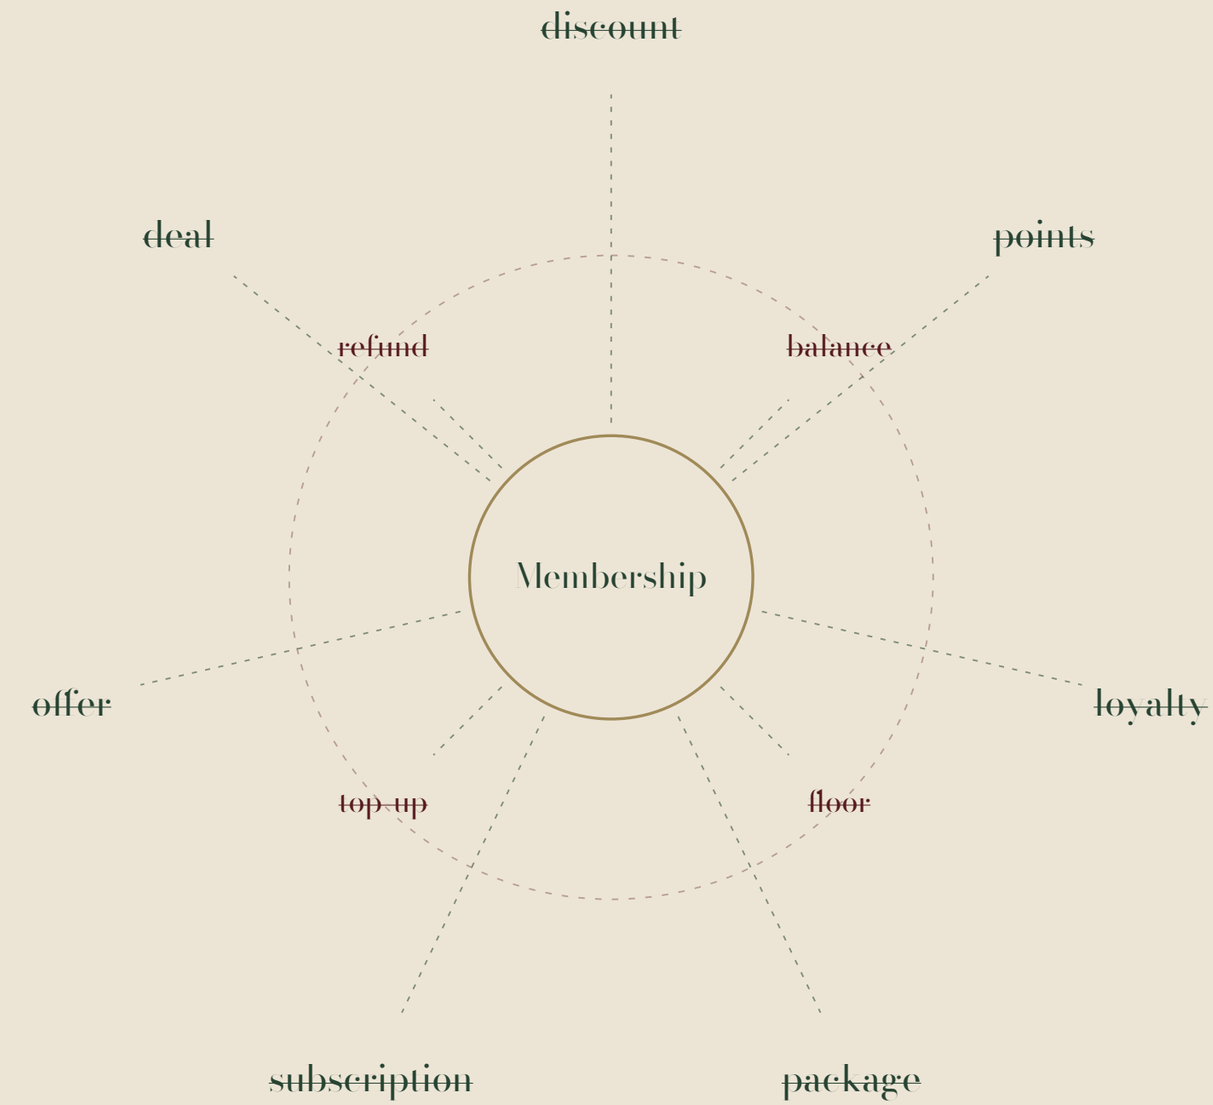
A damaged word.

“Membership” is a damaged word in Tehran: gym contracts, pre-sales, loyalty schemes, pyramid outfits. If we sound like one of those for a single sentence, we are one of those.

The word never appears beside the outer ring. And never, in anything a guest can read, beside the inner one — those words belong to the finance manager, outside the building, in private.

~~Never~~ beside, anywhere

~~Never~~ where a guest can read



01 130

The owner's network

Roughly 130 founding members come directly from the owner. The club does not begin with marketing; it begins with a room already full of the right people.

02 — ROOT STRENGTH

Three things give the brand authority before it opens. None of them can be copied by anyone who opens a room with a bigger budget.

Everything else in this document exists to protect the third.

02 5

Namdar Holding

Tribe, Déjà Vu, Greenhouse, Project D, Déjà Vu Dubai. The kitchen, the suppliers, the discipline and the reputation exist on day one.

03 1

The file

The member record and the Keeper who holds it. The asset that only grows, and cannot be opened on the other side of town.

(02)

Audience and insight

03 TARGET AUDIENCE · HOW THE TENSION IS HELD · 04 THE INSIGHT

IN THIS PART

Every good room in Tehran recognises them. None of it accumulates. What they want is rarer and quieter — a place that already knows. and never says so.

03 — TARGET AUDIENCE

Four groups, one room.

Price keeps the second group small. The committee caps and reviews the ratio monthly; the membership manager guards the mix.

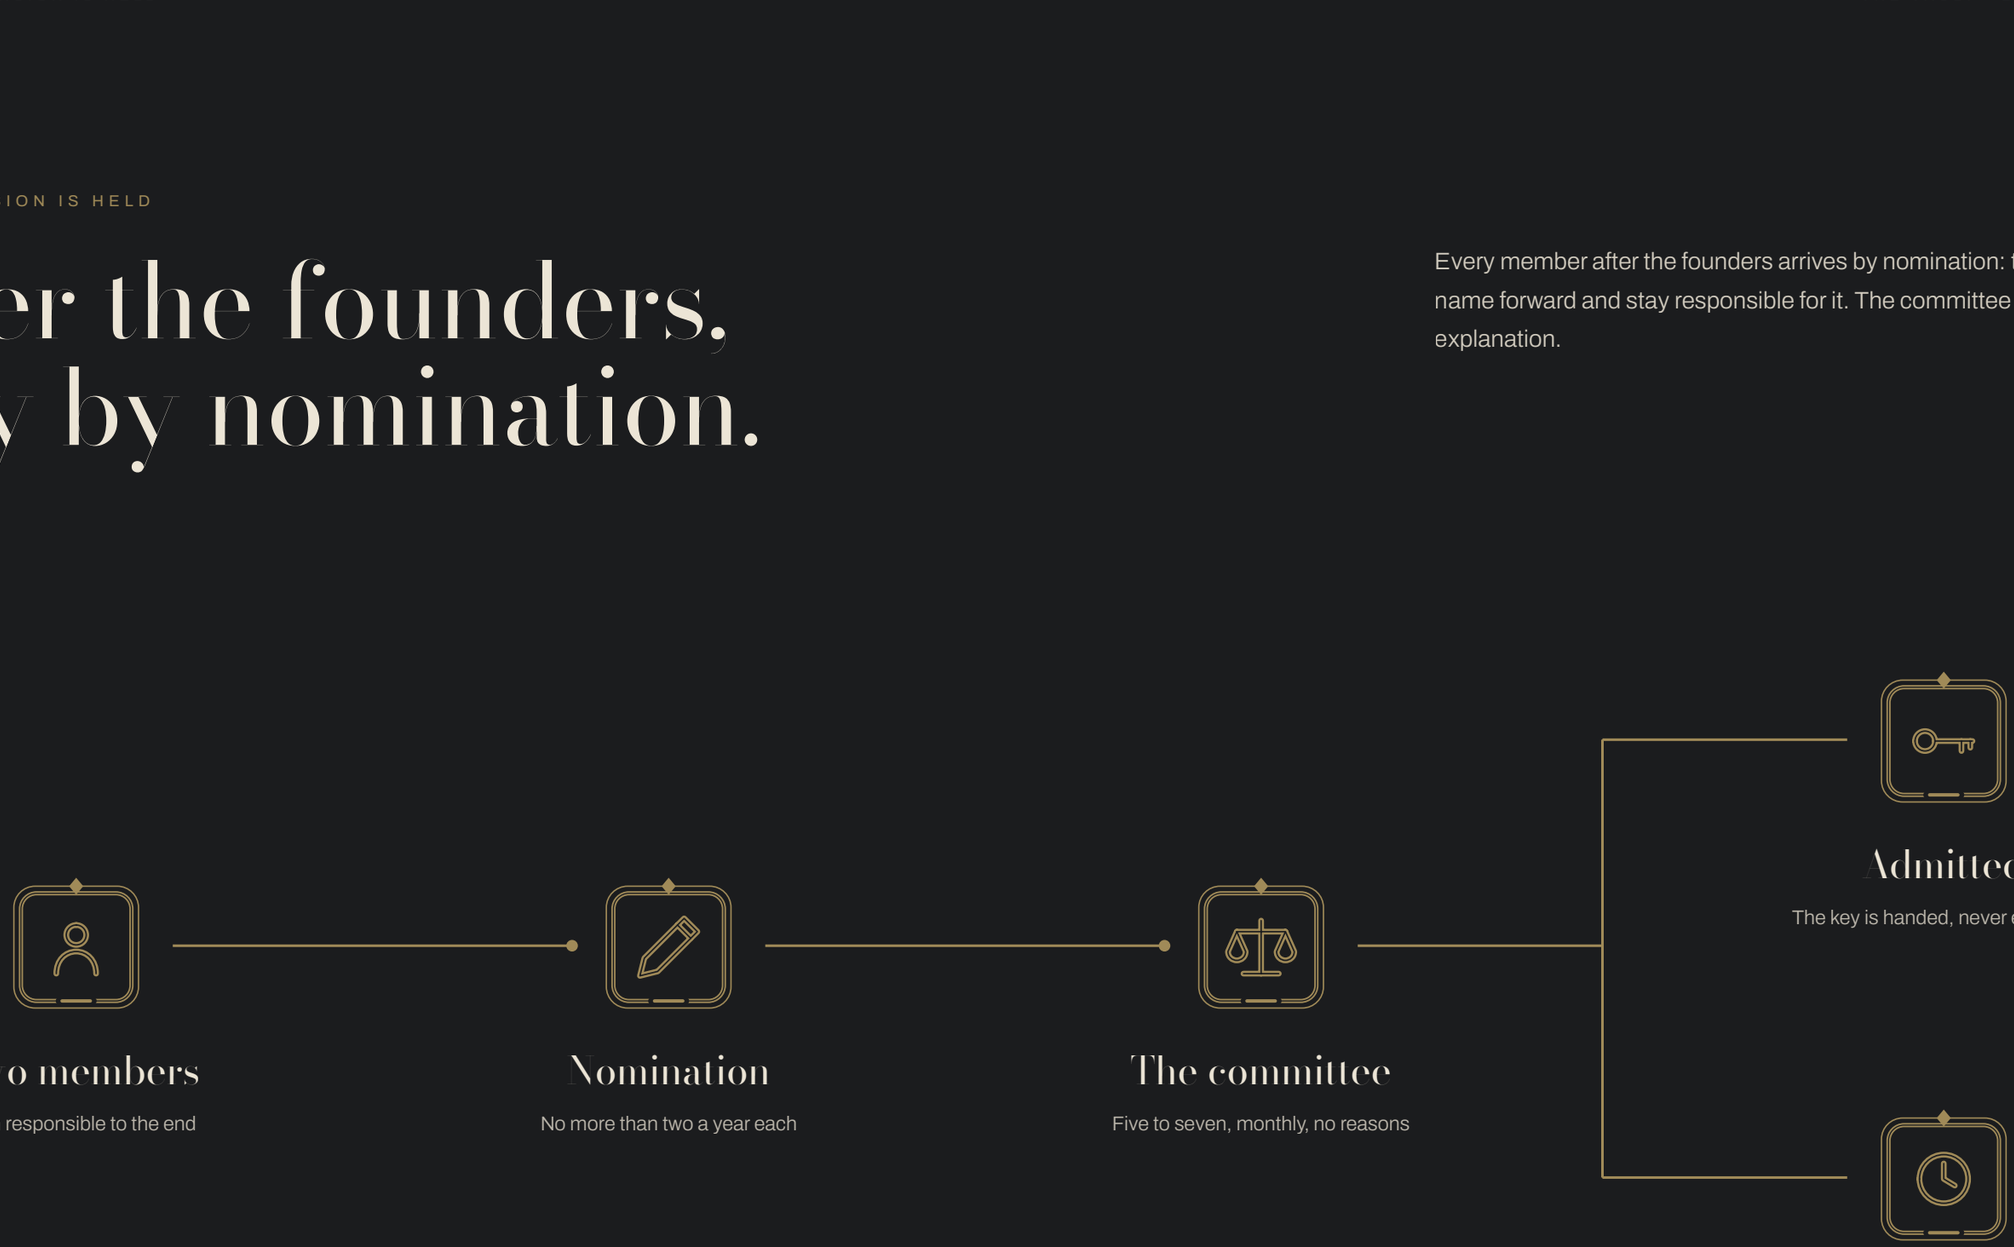
One cultural rule, enforced by the Club Manager rather than implied: the Vault is not a place to pitch.

	GROUP	WHO	WHAT THEY BUY
01	COHORT ZERO The founding members	Roughly 130 people invited directly by the owner. Not a target segment — a personal network. They decide what this place is in ten years.	Belonging to the owner's company from the first night
02	PRIMARY Owners and senior executives	Forties and fifties. Established, time-poor, socially central.	Calm, discretion, and nobody trying to sell them anything
03	SECONDARY Founders and creative leaders	Under thirty-five. Energy and future standing; their value to the primary group is proximity to it — which is the tension.	Standing next to standing
01	COMPANIONS Spouses, partners, friends	Come with a member. Never addressed by name until it is offered; never a member by proximity.	Being the member's guest, and nothing more

HOW THE TENSION IS HELD

After the founders, only by nomination.

Every member after the founders arrives by nomination: two members put a name forward and stay responsible for it. The committee decides without explanation.



Two members

Each responsible to the end

Nomination

No more than two a year each

The committee

Five to seven, monthly, no reasons

Admitted

The key is handed, never explained

Not at this time

The file stays open for one year

Owner's exception: the owner may admit anyone directly. Nobody enters by claiming to know the owner — the list works, the name does not.

04 — THE INSIGHT

Every good room in Tehran recognises them: the name at the door, the better table, the owner's greeting. None of it accumulates. The next restaurant asks again. What they want is rarer and quieter — a place that already knows, and never says so.

Recognised, never known.

04 — THE INSIGHT

Being recognised is loud.
Being known is silent.

03 — THE AUDIENCE

Not the unreachable few. The right room.

The core

05 MISSION · 06 VISION · 07 VALUES · 08 ESSENCE · 09 PROMISE

IN THIS PART

09 Promise — Here, once is enough. 025

05 — MISSION

To keep what members value most — their time, their preferences, their relationships and their privacy — and give it back to them every night, without being asked.

Time

No waiting, no repeated question, no decision already made for them.

Preferences

The table, the drink, the night they always come.

Relationships

Who they came with, and whom to seat them away from.

Privacy

Nothing confirmed, nothing shown, nothing kept that should not be.

The kitchen carries the economics; internally we never pretend otherwise.

The mission is not the meal. It is the keeping.

06 — VISION

Ten years, one room.

In ten years, The Vault is the room Tehran's most established people regard as their own — the one address where they are known, never watched, and never sold to.

Success is not scale.

YEAR ONE

A founding member receives the key.

YEAR TEN

Still a member — and their nomination still the hardest thing in the city to earn.

07 — CORE VALUES

Five beliefs, each with the behaviour that proves it.

A value without a behaviour is decoration.

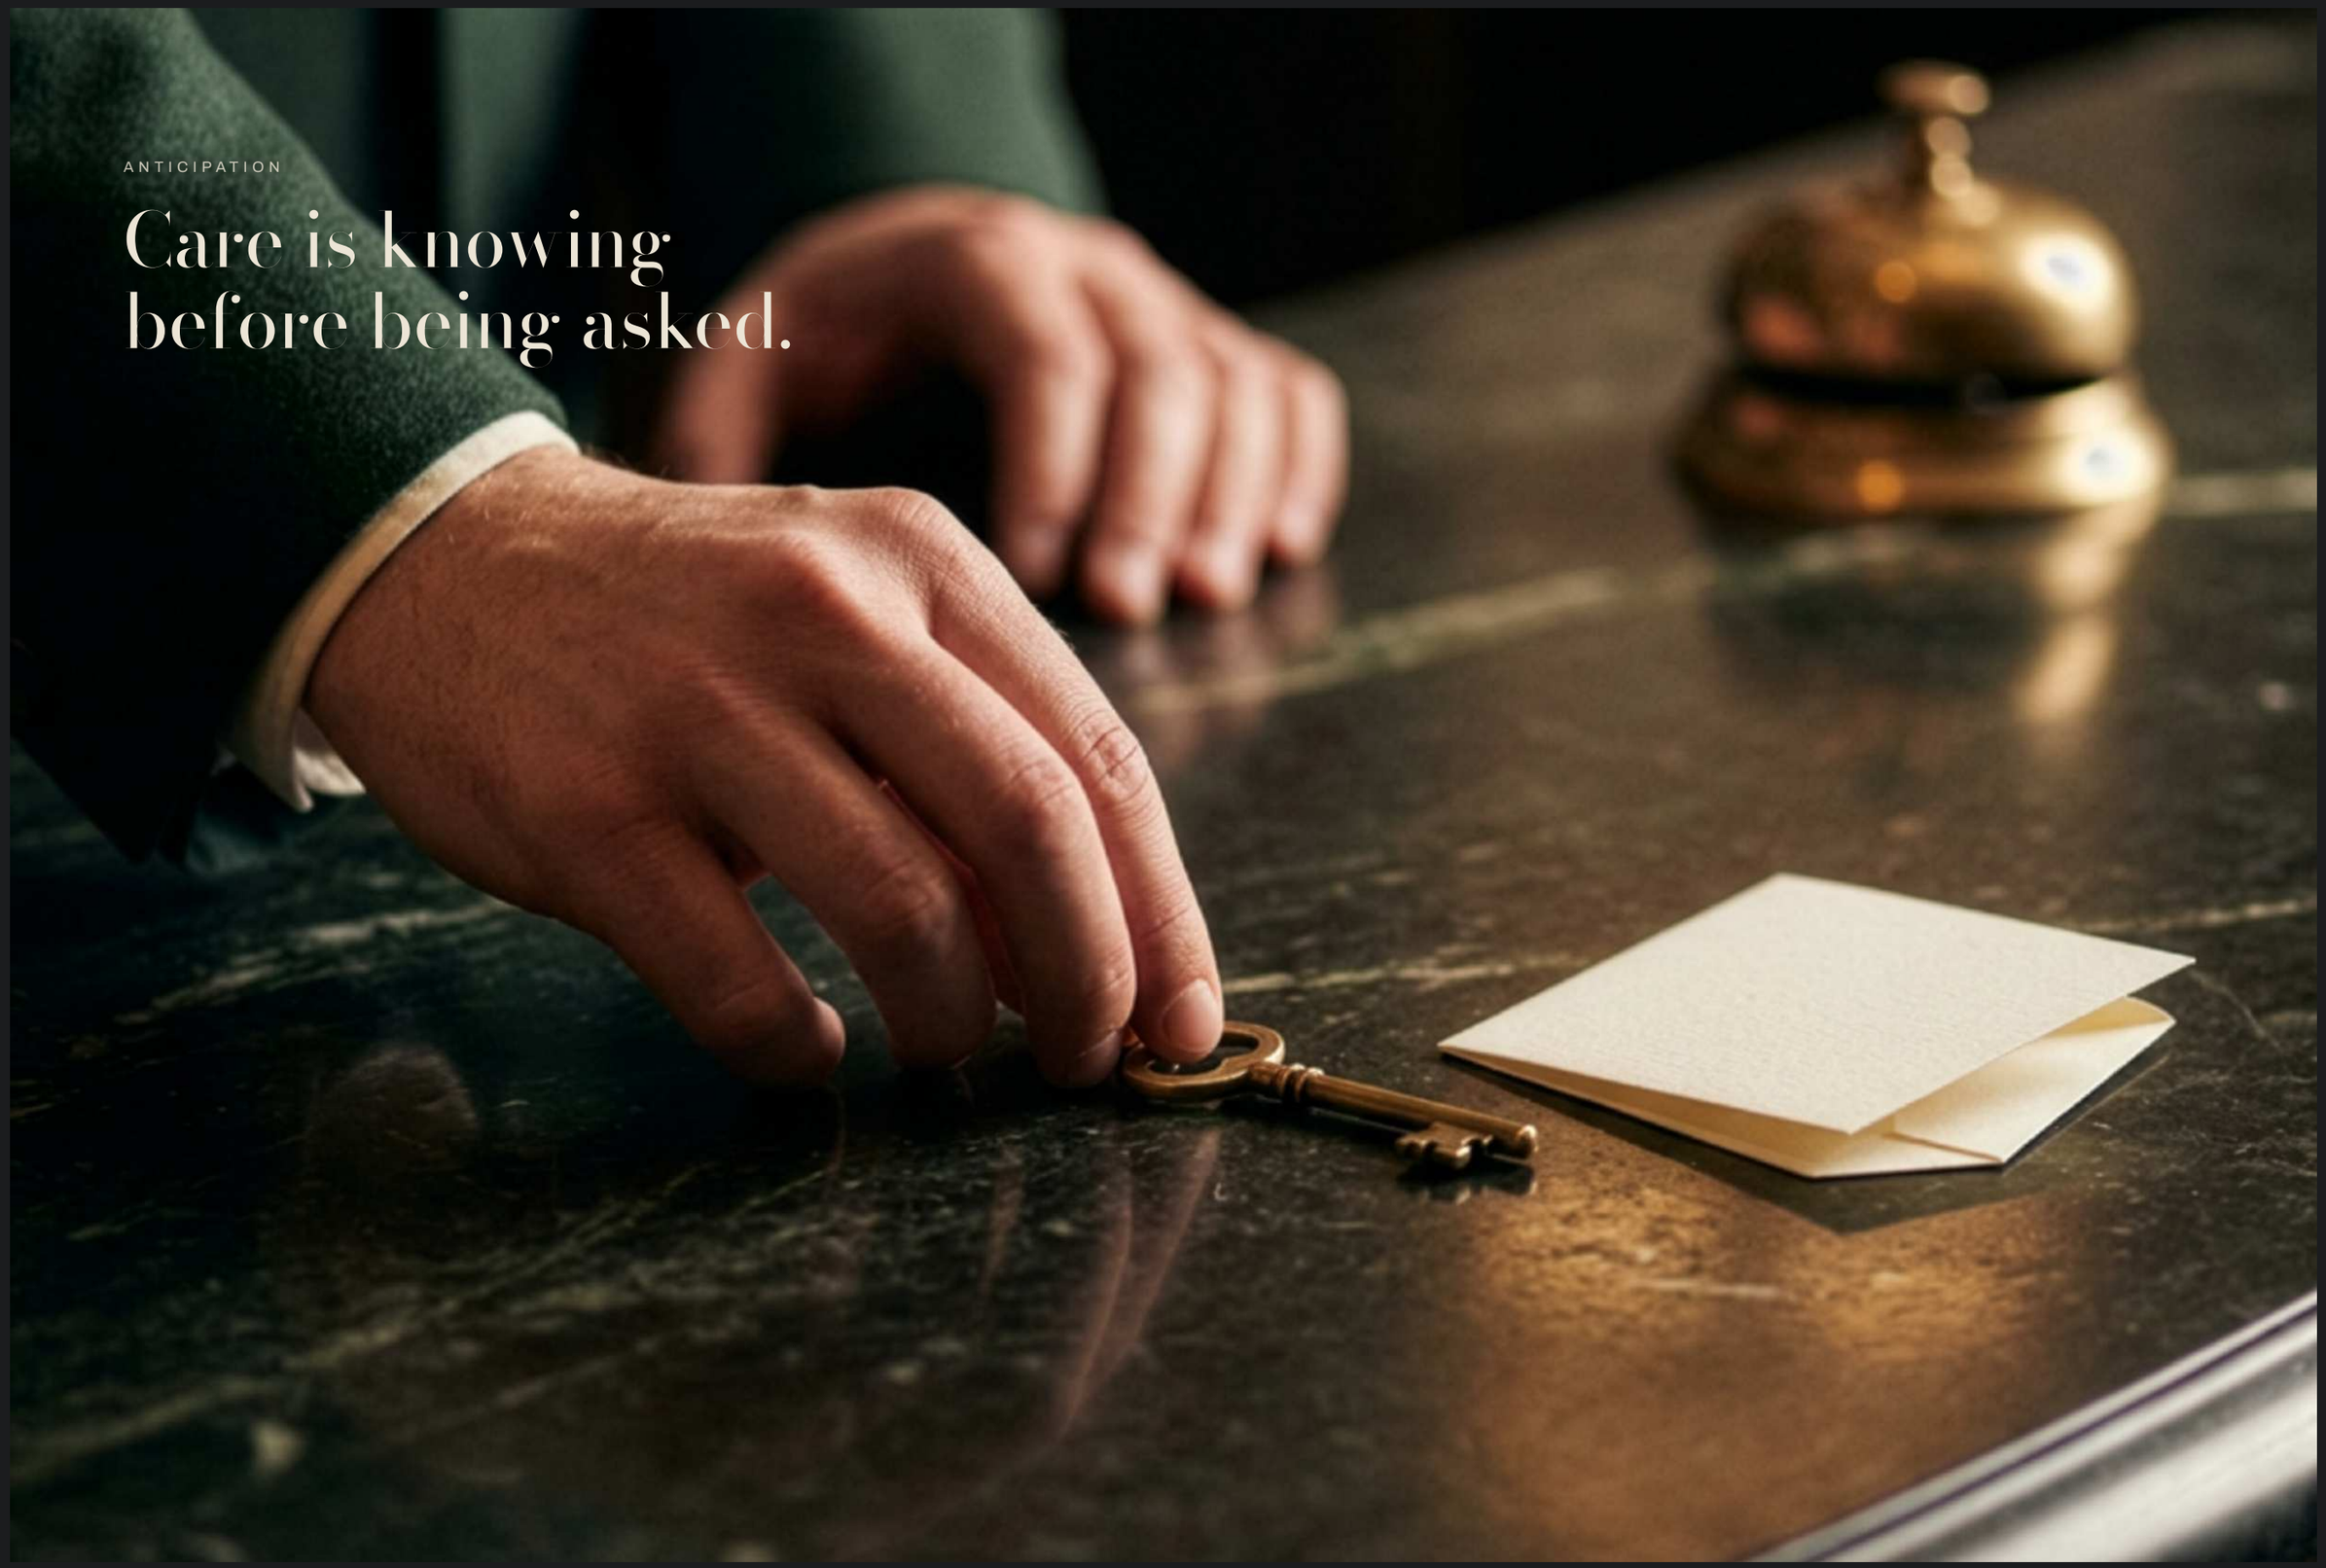
07 — CORE VALUES

What we believe, and how it shows.

VALUE	WHAT WE BELIEVE	HOW IT SHOWS
Memory	What we know about a member is the product	Every preference recorded the moment it is heard; nobody is asked what we already know
Discretion	We are discreet, never secret — secrecy invites suspicion	No membership confirmed or denied; no photography; guests' names erased at close; "he is not here" is banned, because it confirms
Anticipation	Care is knowing before being asked	The coffee before the order; the garden date found by the Keeper, not the member; the car arranged before the question
Exactness	A promise is a debt	Never no, never an instant yes; a time between the two; nothing promised that the Keeper's list does not permit
Equal rule	A rule that bends for one person stops being a rule	The same house rules for the founder and the newest member; only the owner, in writing, grants an exemption

ANTICIPATION

Care is knowing before being asked.



08 — BRAND ESSENCE

The Vault remembers.

A restaurant starts over every night; this house does not. If a service, a sentence or a hire makes the club forget — asks a name, loses a preference, repeats a mistake — it does not belong here.

TAGLINE

Where value is kept

Public — beneath the mark. The promise made public.

ESSENCE

The Vault remembers

Internal — what every decision answers to.

PROMISE

Here, once is enough

To the member — what they hear.

Each line has one fixed Persian form, said the same way every time. The house remembers for the member, never about the member.

09 — BRAND PROMISE

Here, once is enough.

Not a tagline — a test. Every service, every sentence, every hire either delivers it or does not belong in the club.

Identity is checked once, at the threshold, and never again that night.

It scales down

A drink poured before it is ordered. The bartender's one question — "The usual, or something else tonight?" The first half shows he remembers; the second permits change.

It scales up

A table held for three years without being asked. A reservation confirmed by being recorded, with no confirmation call.

It fails loudly

The moment we ask what we already know — a name, a document, whether they have been before, how they take their coffee — it is broken, and everyone within earshot notices.

THE FOUR PILLARS BENEATH THE PROMISE

Four things money does not simply buy. They are not equal.

PRIMARY — THE PRODUCT

Memory

Knowing before being asked. The only pillar that grows with time.

SECOND — THE RETURN

Time

No waiting, no friction, no decisions already made for you. The measurable output of memory.

THIRD — THE ROOM

Belonging

A company of peers chosen deliberately — produced by who is refused as much as by who is admitted.

FOURTH — THE MOST HONEST

Access

Doors we can actually open, named plainly. We claim less than any club in the world, and keep every word.

Memory leads. Access is deliberately last, deliberately small, and deliberately deliverable.

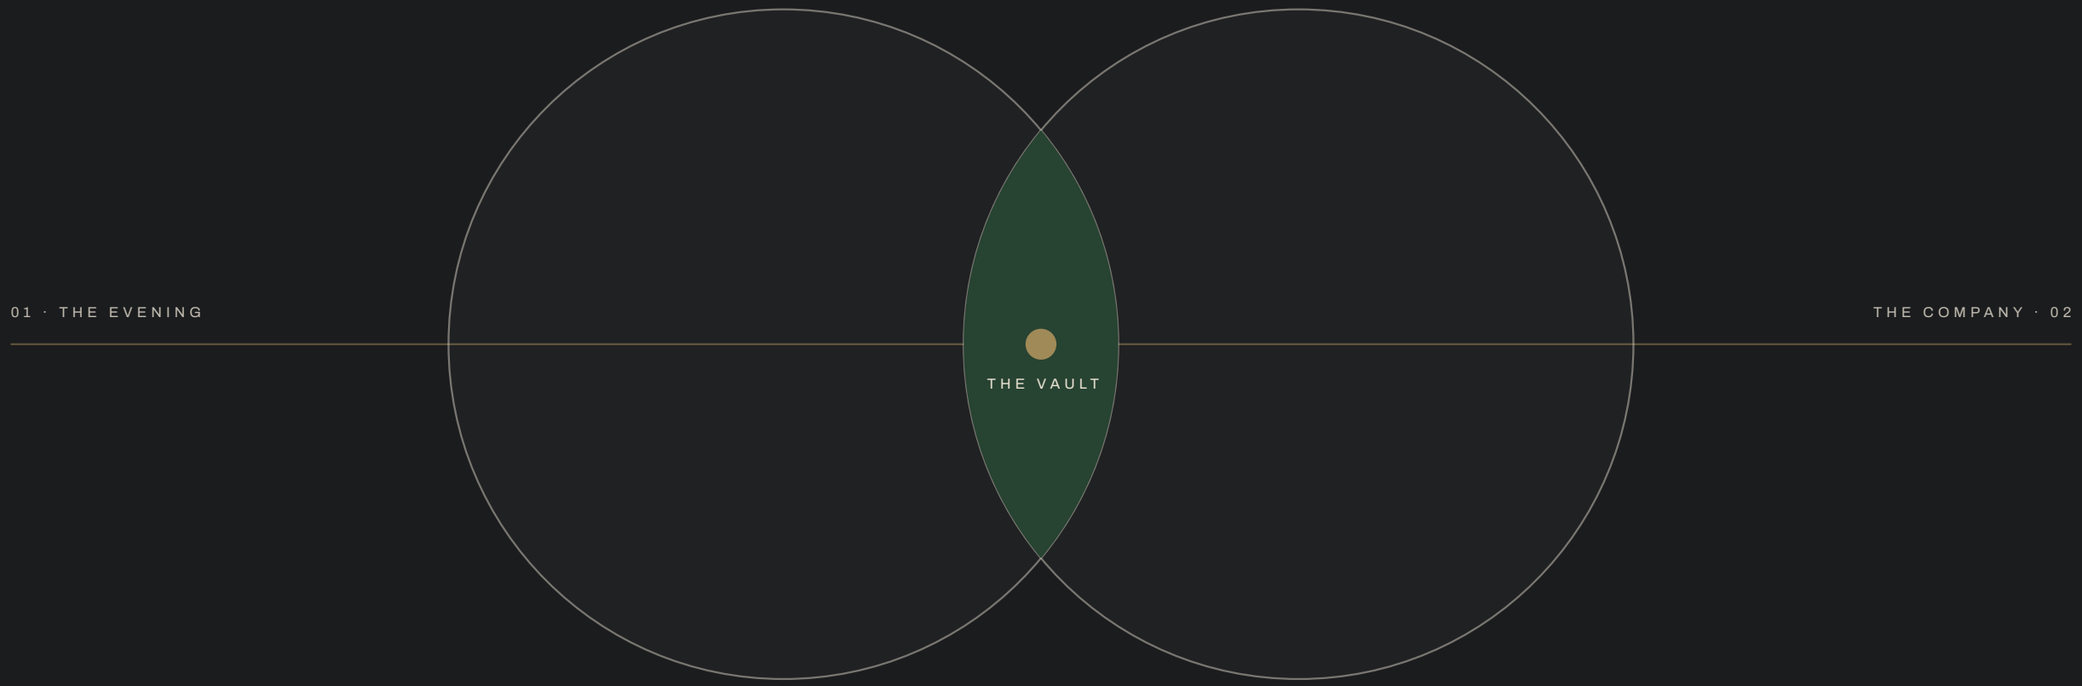
10 — POSITIONING



FRAME OF REFERENCE

The evening

We are compared with the best evening a member can already have in Tehran: the restaurant, the hotel bar, their own house. None of them remembers; none chooses the company.

POINT OF DIFFERENCE

The company, and the memory that protects it

A room the owner filled first, and a house that keeps it. The company cannot be copied with a bigger budget; the memory makes it safe to sit in.

REASON TO BELIEVE

The Keeper and the record

A staffed concierge and a member record built over years. The proof is the second visit.

WHAT WE GIVE UP

Five easy numbers.

Every one of these would raise this year's number and lower the club's value. Each is refused on purpose, and the refusal is part of the product.

11 — POSITIONING STATEMENT

FOR	Tehran's established owners. senior executives and founders
WHO WANT	to belong to a company worth being part of.
THE VAULT IS	the one room in the city where the company was chosen and nobody can walk up to you uninvited —
BECAUSE	unlike every other evening in the city. The Vault remembers who you are. who you came with. and whom you would rather not meet.

12 — VALUE LADDER

From what the house does to what the member finally gets.

01

Attribute

Admission by nomination; a staffed Keeper; a record that never leaves the building

Held by a few named people; identity checked once

02

Functional

Nothing repeated, nothing waited for, nobody uninvited at your table

The name first; the usual drink before the order

03

Social

The company around you was chosen, and chose you

Two nominators; a committee that refuses

04

Emotional

Safe to be seen; approached only on your terms

Introductions only when asked; no photography

05

Self-expressive

I belong somewhere that does not need to say so

The roster is never published; the card is never explained

06

End value

Time returned, and standing kept intact

No bill at the table; no reason demanded for a refusal

Each rung is proved by a rule in the house, not by a claim. Proof in italics.

Character

14 ARCHETYPE · 15 PERSONALITY · 16 VOICE · THE SCRIPTS · 17 THE RELATIONSHIP

IN THIS PART

A well-travelled host who knows everyone, remembers everything, and mentions neither. Warm but selective. Never impressed, never impressing.

15 Personality — 038

16 Voice — Six principles. — 039

The scripts — Scripts, not guidelines. — 042

17 The relationship — 043

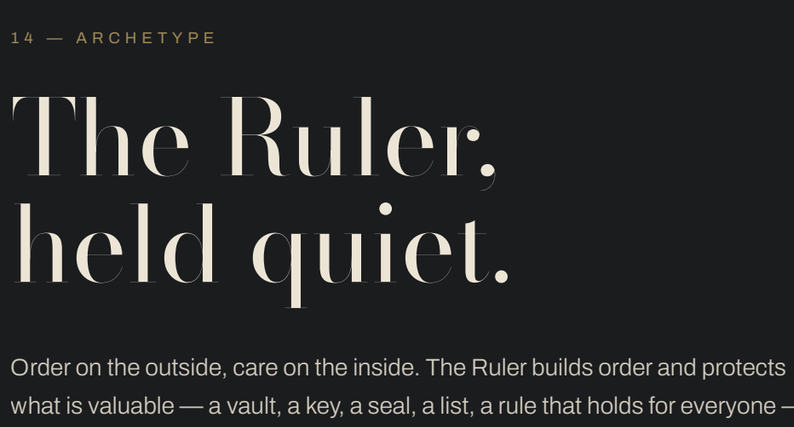
14 — ARCHETYPE

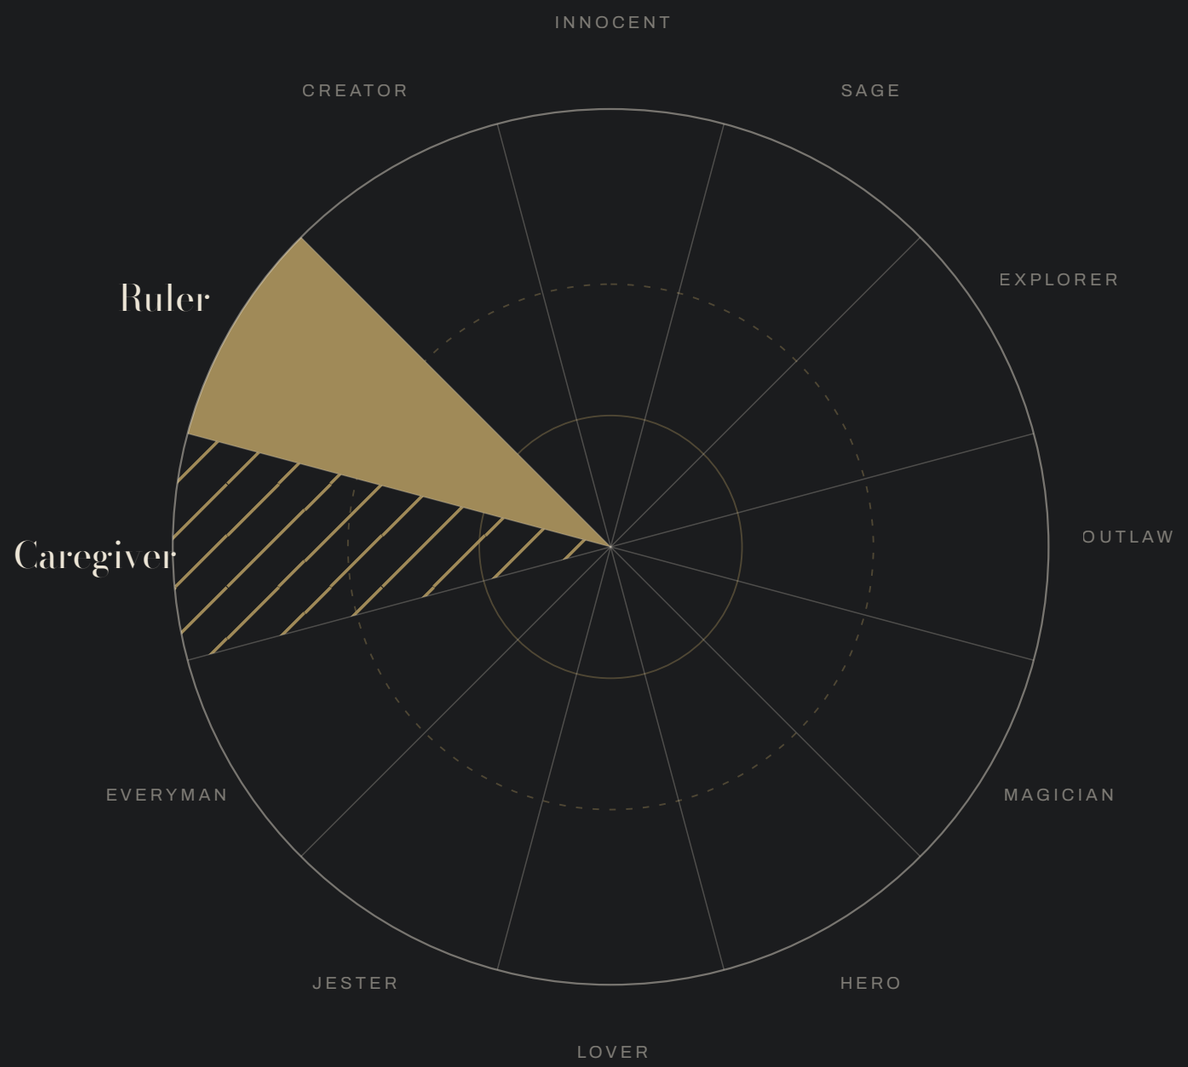
The Ruler, held quiet.

Order on the outside, care on the inside. The Ruler builds order and protects what is valuable — a vault, a key, a seal, a list, a rule that holds for everyone — but never raises its voice. The Caregiver is the Keeper.

PRIMARY · RULER

SECONDARY · CAREGIVER





The Ruler without the Caregiver is a bank; the Caregiver without the Ruler is a hotel.

15 — BRAND PERSONALITY

If The Vault were a person: a well-travelled host who knows everyone, remembers everything, and mentions neither. Warm but selective. Never impressed, never impressing.

Assured.

Certainty, not enthusiasm. We state; we do not persuade. Confidence shows as brevity. An exclamation mark is a confession of doubt.

Quiet.

Say less than you know. Restraint is the loudest signal of standing. The most impressive sentence is usually the one we chose not to write.

Exact.

A promise is a debt. Specific over clever. If we cannot name the time, the person or the outcome, we do not write the sentence.

IN VOICE

Your table is ready whenever you are.

OUT OF VOICE

~~Get ready for an unforgettable evening at Tehran's most exclusive luxury destination!~~

16 — VOICE

Six principles.

The club speaks Persian; the system is named in English. Everything said to a member is written natively, never translated.

01

Say less than you know

Every sentence implies a larger, unstated competence. Never explain the machinery.

02

Never sell

No calls to action, no urgency, no scarcity. The club does not ask; it admits.

03

Certainty over enthusiasm

No exclamation marks, no superlatives, no “we are delighted to”.

04

Name the person

“Mr Bina”, not “our valued member”. Generic address contradicts the brand in four words.

05

A promise is a debt

Only what the Keeper’s list permits. An unkept promise costs more than one never made.

06

Refuse without explaining

One sentence, repeated unchanged, no reason. Reasons invite negotiation.

THE HOUSE TEST

Would the Keeper say it out loud, to one person, at a quiet table?

TONE BY SITUATION

One voice, eight dials.

SITUATION	DIAL	SOUNDS LIKE	NEVER
Welcoming a member	Warm, brief, by name	“Good evening, Mr Bina. Your table is ready.”	Asking who they are, or saying we knew they were coming
Welcoming a companion	Warm, without the name	“Welcome.” The name only once it is offered	Addressing a first-time guest by name
Declining a non-member	Level, unchanging, no reason	One sentence, repeated identically	“You’re not a member”; “sorry”; any mention of money
Delivering bad news	Direct, owned, with the fix	“It will not be ready tonight. Thursday, confirmed.”	Apologising twice
Keeper acknowledgement	Certain, timed, never final	“I’ll follow this up and come back to you.”	An instant yes, or “let me ask what it costs”
Money	Deferred, private	“It will be on your statement.”	Any number inside the building
Instagram	Ambient, factual, unhurried	A detail, a material, a time. No claim	Any call to action
Internal, staff-facing	Plain, decided, reasoned	A rule, then one line of why	Corporate abstraction

LEXICON

The words of the house.

A member is a member — plain, in both languages. There is no tier above member. Private is permitted; secret is not.

INSTEAD OF	WE SAY
~~Concierge~~	The Keeper
~~Membership~~	The Key
~~Joining~~	Receiving the key
~~Application~~	Nomination
~~Guest list~~	Tonight's names

NEVER, IN ANY LANGUAGE

~~discount~~ ~~points~~ ~~loyalty~~ ~~package~~ ~~subscription~~ ~~deal~~ ~~offer~~ ~~VIP~~ ~~luxury~~ ~~exclusive~~ ~~book now~~ ~~limited time~~ ~~don't miss~~ ~~unforgettable~~ ~~iconic~~ ~~world-class~~

THE FIXED SCRIPTS

Scripts, not guidelines.

Each is said in Persian, written natively, the same way every time. English is given here for reference only.

AT THE DOOR, A WALK-IN	"Good evening. Tonight, entry is by members' introduction only." Repeated identically; nothing written down.
A WALK-IN CLAIMS A RESERVATION	"We don't take public reservations."
A PASSER-BY: "WHAT IS THIS PLACE?"	"A private house."
A GUEST WHOSE NAME WAS NOT GIVEN	"We give no information about members' presence. If your name was given, it is on tonight's list." If pressed: "If you call your host, they will guide you."
A GUEST ASKS, "DO YOU HAVE MY NAME?"	"Your host has arranged everything."
A CANDIDATE ASKS THE PRICE	"You will receive the numbers in writing, after the committee has decided."
A CANDIDATE ASKS WHO THE MEMBERS ARE	"Members introduce themselves; we don't."
NOMINATION, TO A CANDIDATE	"You have been put forward by a member. If you wish, we will host you at a time you choose. Your answer, whatever it is, stays with us."

THE BARTENDER	"The usual, or something else tonight?"
KEEPER ACKNOWLEDGEMENT	"I'll follow this up and come back to you." Or: "This can be done; let me confirm by …"
NIGHT AUTO-REPLY, 02:00–08:00	"Your message has been received. We will follow up from eight in the morning."
A MEMBER ASKS THE AMOUNT	"It will be on your statement."
A GUEST INSISTS ON PAYING	"Tonight you are their guest."
STAFF ASKED FOR A PHOTOGRAPH	"Not in the club. Thank you."
INVITATION TO THE GARDEN	"If you wish, another place is ready for you."
THE WELCOME CARD	"This key belongs to you. Here, once is enough."

17 — THE RELATIONSHIP

We know, and we never show that we know.

THE CLUB

A host, not a service

The member is a guest of a house that is theirs — not a customer of a venue.

THE STAFF

Service that never becomes friendship

The Keeper speaks standing, never sits at the table, never uses a first name unless asked.

THE MEMBER

Someone who does not need to be recognised

How they see themselves through the brand.

16 — VOICE

Say less than you know.

INSIDE THE VAULT'S WORLD

The door, the card, the menu, the Keeper's messages, the welcome card — only The Vault.

No part of the house receives a name, a mark or a social account of its own. A lounge under its own name would be the owner's decision, taken once, in writing.

The owner, the staff and the Keeper

19 THE OWNER · 20 THE STAFF · 21 THE BAD NIGHT · THE KEEPER · THE EVIDENCE

IN THIS PART

The memory of the house lives in people before it lives in any system. A house that keeps its people keeps its promise.

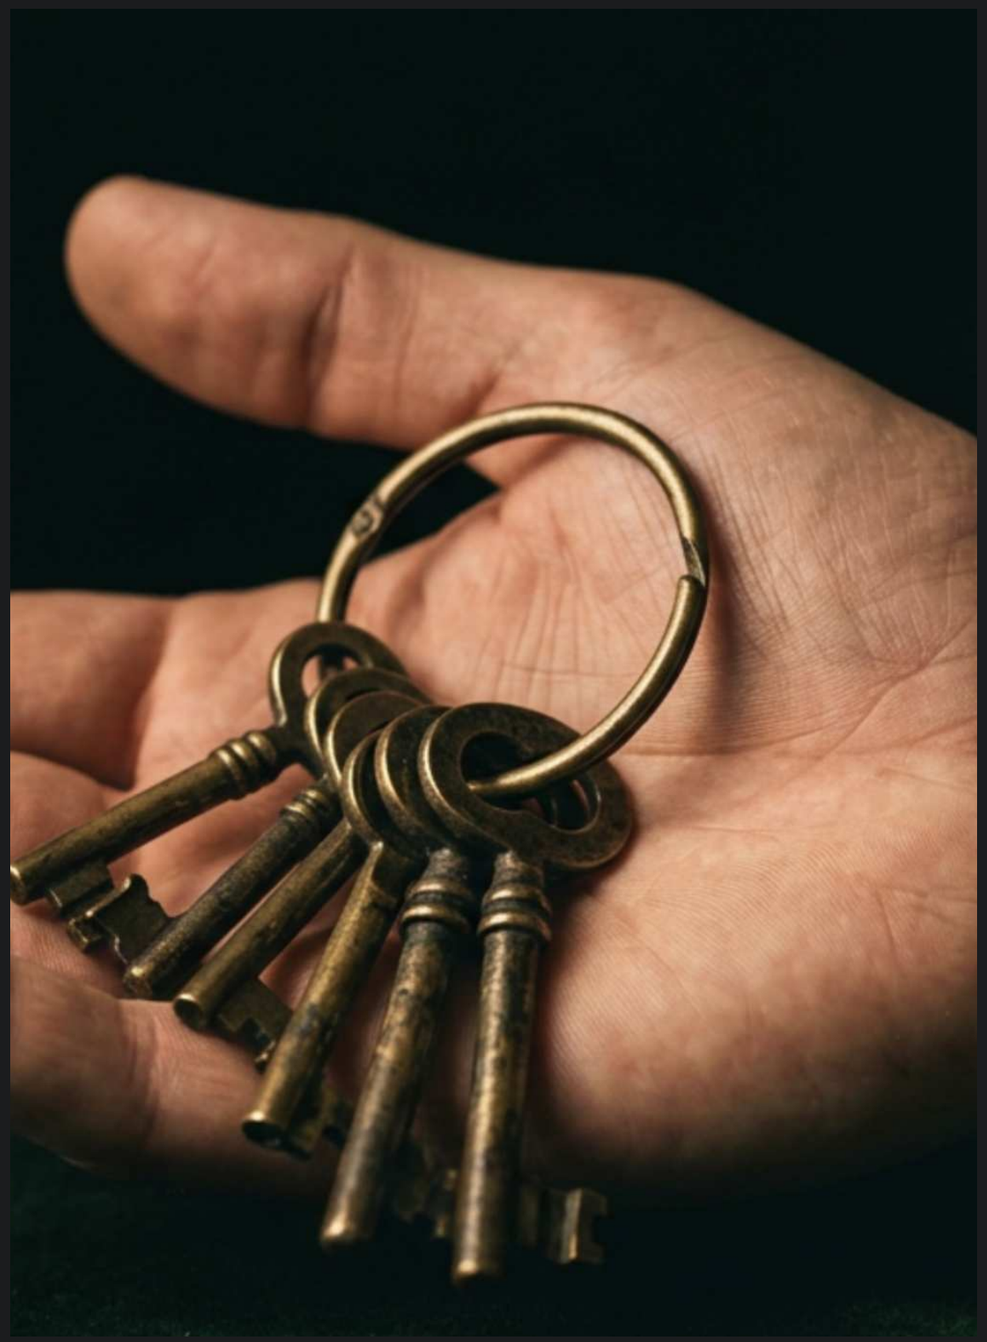
19	The owner	The club is his; the room is the members'.	053
20	The staff	Keepers of the house.	054
21	The bad night	Written before it is needed.	055
	The Keeper	Never no at the table. Never an instant yes.	056
	The evidence	Shown after the fact. Never sold as a catalogue.	059

19 — THE OWNER IN PUBLIC

The club is his; the room is the members'.

The owner is the brand's first asset and its loudest channel. His own list is how the founders arrive; after that, his word opens no door on the night.

HE MAY	HE NEVER
Say that he owns it	Name a member
Bring the founders, from his own list	Post from inside
Decide before the night — the list, the exemption — in writing	Confirm who was there
Give the final word on media	Answer a question about the club before the Club Manager has
	Open a door on the night by his word



20 — THE STAFF

Keepers of the house.

The memory of the house lives in people before it lives in any system, and people leave. So the staff are not hired to execute rules; they are hired to keep a house, and told so.

01

Chosen for discretion

Before skill — because skill can be taught in a season and discretion cannot.

02

Paid to stay

A Keeper who leaves takes a year of memory with them.

03

Protected

A member who mistreats staff is dealt with by the Club Manager, never by the person it happened to. Reporting it never costs the reporter anything.

A house that keeps its people keeps its promise.

21 — THE BAD NIGHT

Written before it is needed.

A list leaks. A photograph gets out. Something happens between a member and a member of staff.

1

One spokesperson

The Club Manager. Nobody else speaks.

2

One sentence

Prepared in advance, repeated unchanged. No explanation, no denial of specifics, no name.

3

The member first

The member concerned hears it from the club before they hear it from anyone else.

1

The owner is silent

The owner does not speak.

3

Then, discretion resumes

Life and safety override every other rule, always and at once.

THE KEEPER

Never no at the table. Never an instant yes.

Every request is answered — including no, later, privately, with what can be done. Between the two, the Keeper gives a time.

An instant yes

Promises what the list may not permit.

A time

“This can be done; let me confirm by nine.”

No, at the table

Said later, privately, with what can be done instead.

What the Keeper may decide alone is written in the Keeper’s list, approved by the owner. Whatever is not on it goes up — and “don’t tell the manager” is itself the reason the manager is told.

THE KEEPER'S LIST

Three colours. The default is red.

Written by the General Manager, approved by the owner, reviewed every quarter. The Keeper never writes the line he has to hold.

Green

DECIDED BY THE KEEPER, ALONE

- Restaurants, here or abroad
- Hotels and residences
- Flowers and gifts under the ceiling
- Car and driver
- Concert, match and theatre tickets
- Courier, tailor, cobbler
- Travel and transfers
- Cigars for the private humidor

Yellow

DONE, LOGGED, REPORTED THAT NIGHT

- Anything above the ceiling
- Anything the club pays forward
- Anything involving another member
- A whole zone reserved
- Asked by a companion, not the member
- Less than two hours' notice
- A supplier never used before

Red

ONLY THE GENERAL MANAGER

- Anything with legal consequence
- Documents, permits, authorities
- Information about another member
- Staff personally involved
- Press, journalists, cameras
- The health or safety of anyone
- Anything to be kept from the General Manager

THE KEEPER'S HOURS

:00–08:00, received; followed up from eight

Answered, timed, written down.

2 hours	Requests closed within standard, in the house or the city
24 hours	Requests that need arranging further away
One number	A line in the club's name, all hours. Nothing on a personal phone.
Same day	Every request logged to the file. The phone is a door, not a memory.

THE EVIDENCE

Shown after the fact.
Never sold as a catalogue.

Access is the fourth pillar and the most honest one: doors we can actually open, named plainly. The pages that follow are what the Keeper has done — not what the club offers.

The house's own rarest room, the garden, is granted, never sold.

VIII — PRINCIPLES

Six rules bind the house as much as the member.

Only the owner, in writing, grants an exemption.

22	Admission is chosen, never bought	Entry by nomination and committee. The owner's list works; the owner's name does not.
23	The guest is the host's	No file, never pays, never sees a number, never told whether the host is inside.
24	Money is never in the room	One membership, one charge. No bill reaches a table; the balance is never forfeited.
25	Known, and never watched	The house remembers for the member, never about the member.
26	The Keeper never says no at the table	Every request is answered — including no, later, privately.
27	One rule for everyone	The same rules for the founder and the newest member.

22 — ADMISSION

Chosen, never bought.

A candidate is met in the house, asked three questions, and never told a price before the committee has spoken. A file is never dressed up as a queue.

Question 1

Why here?

Question 2

Whom do you know in this company?

Question 3

What do you add?

THE ANSWER

Admitted.

OR

Not admitted at this time.

LIMITS

Two nominators, responsible to the end. No member nominates more than two people a year.

23 — THE GUEST

The guest is the host's.

A guest never goes further than the threshold without the host, and is never told whether the host is inside. A guest never pays and never sees a number. Any error is raised with the host, never with the guest.

WHAT IS KEPT	NEVER KEPT
A name on one night's list	A file

INVITED BY THE SAME MEMBER

1	2	3
First visit	Second visit	Third — quietly a candidate. The only pipeline the club runs, and it asks nobody for anything.

24 — MONEY

Never in the room.

One membership. Any number is spoken only by the finance manager, outside the building, in private. The guest menu carries no prices.

01

Joining fee

One-off, on receiving the key

02

Prepaid charge

With a floor; topped up privately

03

Each visit

Deducted — no bill reaches a table

04

Year end

The balance carries into the next year

NO

Annual minimum. Discount, ever. Guest paying.

NEVER FORFEITED

The balance is the member's.

CANCELLED

Membership can be cancelled; it is not transferable.

ON EXPULSION

The balance is refunded; the joining fee is not.

25 — KNOWN, NEVER WATCHED

For the member, never about them.

KEPT	NEVER KEPT
Taste	Faces
Table	Footage beyond the door
Time	The subject of any meeting
The people to seat apart	Any guess about a relationship
The dates that matter

TWO MEMBERS WHO SHOULD NOT MEET

Seated apart, always. One is told the other is present only if they asked in advance. The house never guesses.

27 — ONE RULE FOR EVERYONE

The founder and the newest member.

Every breach is recorded, even when nothing is done about it, and never argued at the table. In every case the balance is refunded.

01

Non-renewal

Needs no reason and is not an expulsion — the quietest tool the house has.

02

Written warnings

One to three, recorded with a date and without adjectives.

03

Expulsion

For serious misconduct — at once, or after the warnings. The balance is refunded.

04

Barred

Serious crime bars entry.

28 WHAT WE ARE NOT · 29 THE VISIBILITY RULE · 30 NEVER PRODUCED · 31 NINE QUESTIONS

IN THIS PART

For a brand built on restraint, the list of no matters as much as the list of yes.

28 What we are not — The list of no. — 077

29 The visibility rule — The club is known. The list is not. — 078

30 Never produced — Twelve things. — 079

31 Nine questions — Nine questions. One no is enough. — 080

28 — WHAT WE ARE NOT

The list of no.

For a brand built on restraint, the list of no matters as much as the list of yes. When a request, a design or a sentence belongs on this page, the answer is no — whoever is asking, whatever it earns.

~~A loyalty programme~~	No points, no tier earned by spending, no discount — ever, to anyone.
~~A networking service~~	Nobody is introduced to anybody without being asked first.
~~A fixer~~	No influence, paperwork, permits or institutions. In the Keeper's list these are red.
~~A secret~~	Secrecy invites suspicion. We are discreet.
~~Loud~~	No superlatives, no urgency, no exclamation marks.
~~A place to pitch~~	Nothing is sold inside — not to a member, not to a guest.
~~A room for children~~	Under-15s are never admitted, at any hour, in any space.

29 — THE VISIBILITY RULE

The club is known. The list is not.

MAY BE FAMOUS

The club

Its existence, address and standards are public. Word of mouth is the engine.

NEVER

The list

No roster, no named interview without written permission, no confirming or denying.

THE MEMBER'S DECISION

Disclosure

Some will mention it, some never will; both are correct.

ENTRY FOOTAGE

Day 1 — Day 7 — deletes itself

Nothing we make identifies a member: no faces, no plates, no recognisable tables; no photography inside; no cameras in the garden.
Nothing we keep identifies a guest: one night's list, erased at close; a meeting's guests counted, never named.

30 — NEVER PRODUCED, AT ANY BUDGET

Twelve things.

Everything on this list works by reaching more people. Our product works by reaching fewer.

01

Discount or promotional material

02

Branded giveaways

03

Billboards or street advertising

04

Paid social advertising

05

07

08

09

10

11

Countdowns and teasers

12

An exclamation mark

The Club Manager is the only spokesperson and speaks only when asked; the owner gives the final word on media and never gives an interview about the club.

31 — BEFORE ANYTHING IS RELEASED

Nine questions. One no is enough.

- ☐ 01 — Does it promise only what we can keep?
- ☐ 02 — Does it ask the reader for anything?
- ☐ 03 — Could it identify a member or a guest?
- ☐ 04 — Is “membership” near a forbidden word?
- ☐ 05 — Does it show a price or a number a guest can see?
- ☐ 06 — Does it confirm anyone’s presence — even by denying it?
- ☐ 07 — Any superlative or exclamation mark?
- ☐ 08 — Would the Keeper say it to one person, at a quiet table?
- ☐ 09 — Has the single approver seen it?

32 — HOW WE KNOW THE BRAND IS WORKING

Measured by behaviour, never by reach.

Seven numbers, reviewed monthly by the Club Manager and quarterly by the owner.

	MEASURE	WHY IT MATTERS	REVIEWED
01	Renewal rate at year end	The only verdict that counts	YEARLY
02	Visits in a new member's first 90 days	A member who barely comes in ninety days will probably never come — solved now, not at renewal	MONTHLY
03	Nominations per member, and the admission rate	Belonging is produced by refusal as much as admission	MONTHLY
04	Guests invited more than twice	The pipeline that costs nothing and asks nobody	MONTHLY
05	Requests closed within 2 h / 24 h, and never answered	The Keeper's promise, in numbers	MONTHLY
06	Breaches recorded, and settled within 24 hours	A rule never enforced teaches everyone the list is decoration	MONTHLY
07	Zero standard incidents	Allergy errors, bills on tables, non-members past the threshold, photographs out — brand failures, not service failures	EVERY ONE, THE SAME NIGHT

33 — OPEN DECISIONS

Still the owner's to settle.

Nothing is assumed. They are written here so they are not forgotten.

01	The founding list	The first 130 names — confirm the number and write the list
02	The numbers	Joining fee and the charge floor, and the signal the price sends
03	Opening date	The bottleneck: the senior Keeper starts six months before it
04	The committee	Five to seven members drawn from across the groups
05	Refusal wording	"Not admitted at this time", with the file open one year
06	One membership	Confirm a single membership with no tiers
07	The Keeper's name	The Keeper in English; one fixed Persian form
08	Namdar on Vault surfaces	Approve the direction rule; decide the façade on Maryam Street
09	Positioning and promise	Approve the frame, the difference and the promise
10	The charter	Amend Article 1 to match the owner's authority over the committee
11	Dress code	The exact sentence said at the door
12	Tipping	Forbidden, permitted and pooled, or included in the charge
13	Photographs on an occasion night	Of one's own table, no room in frame — permitted or not
14	A birthday gift	What, and under what cap

Time returned, and standing kept intact.

The mark

WHY A KEY · THE HIDDEN LETTERS · THE MARK · THE EMBLEM

IN THIS PART

A ceremonial key standing upright — the monogram in its bow, the crown at its tip — exactly as it is placed in a new member's hand.

Why a key — The key that opened the court. — 091

The hidden letters — Five letters, concealed. — 093

The mark — The key, standing upright. — 100

The emblem — The monogram, in the black square. — 101

WHY A KEY

The key that opened the court.

From the seventeenth century, the courts of Europe gave their chamberlains a key as the badge of office — gilded, worn at the hip on a ribbon, its bow carrying the sovereign's monogram beneath a crown. It opened nothing in particular. It meant the right to pass the last door, and the trust that came with it.

The Vault's mark is drawn in that tradition: a ceremonial key standing upright — the monogram in its bow, the crown at its tip — exactly as it is placed in a new member's hand. Members are Keyholders; the first act of membership is the key.

WHY THIS MARK — A SEAL OF ADMISSION, NOT A GRAPHIC

01

The key is at the centre

A ceremonial upright key at the exact centre fixes the passage from outsider to part of the house.

02

A court monogram, not a logo

The interlaced V and T follow European court and bookplate monograms: established, historical, difficult to forge.

03

One root, one house

The scrollwork grows out of the key and reaches into the arms of the V. Club and member drawn from one stem.

01

The name is concealed in it

Every letter of VAULT is hidden in the drawing — present to those who belong, invisible to the uninvited eye.

THE PRIVATE VAULT

What is kept here is not on show.

THE HIDDEN LETTERS

Five letters, concealed.

Every letter of the name is carried by a part of the drawing. Nobody is expected to find them at a glance — that is the point. It is the club's own rule made visible: present for those who belong, invisible to the uninvited eye.

V A U L T

An internal explanation, not a public claim: it belongs in staff induction and in this book — never on a menu, never captioned, never a puzzle for guests.

V

The arms

The two arms of the V — the frame and main column of the whole mark. The first letter of the name holds everything else.

THE HIDDEN LETTERS · 02 / 05

The V, closed

The V read upside down and closed by its crossbar: the smallest room in the alphabet, two walls and a roof.

THE HIDDEN LETTERS · 03 / 05

U

The bowls

The two great scrolls that curl out of the key form the bowl of the U — the open hands that hold what is kept.

L

The stem and its foot

Where the stem of the T meets the bar beneath it, an L stands in the angle — upright, then a step forward.

T

The centre

The T is woven through the heart of the mark, its bar across the V and its stem running down into the shaft of the key.

V · A · U · L · T

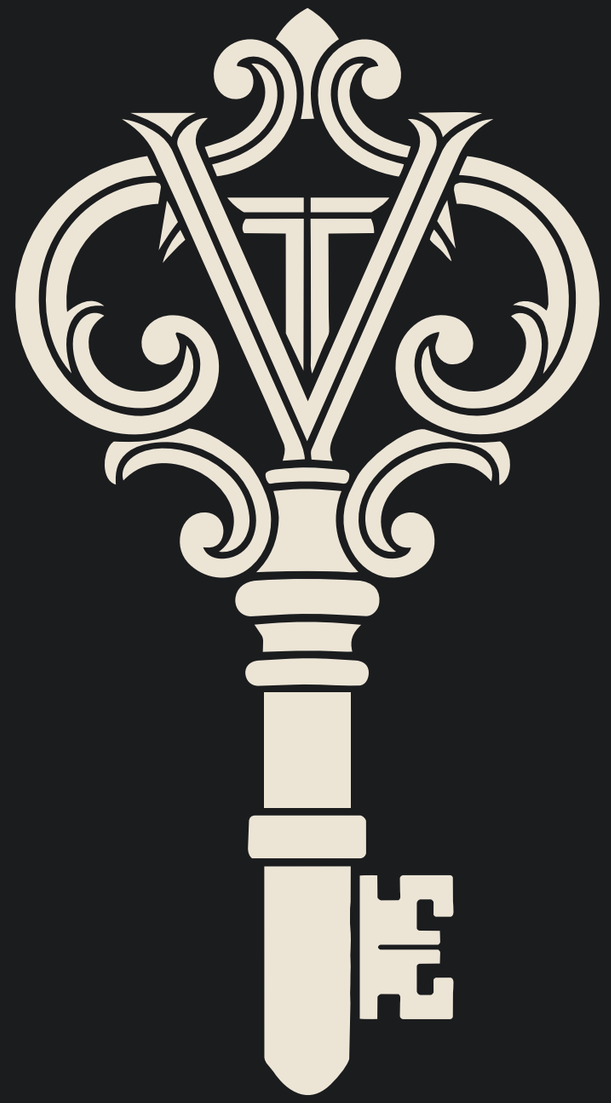
Present for those who belong. Invisible to the uninvited.

V	A	U	L	T
THE ARMS	THE V, CLOSED	THE BOWLS	THE STEM AND ITS FOOT	THE CENTRE

THE MARK

The key, standing upright.

The primary mark: the ceremonial key in one colour. Ivory on Vault Black, or Vault Black on ivory — never outlined, never in a box, never set on a busy ground.



THE EMBLEM

The monogram. in the black square.

For seals, stamps, avatars and small spaces: the bow of the key in a black square, held by a black frame line. Nothing sits around it — no background panel, no corners, no shadow.

THE VAULT DOOR

The emblem, cast in brass.

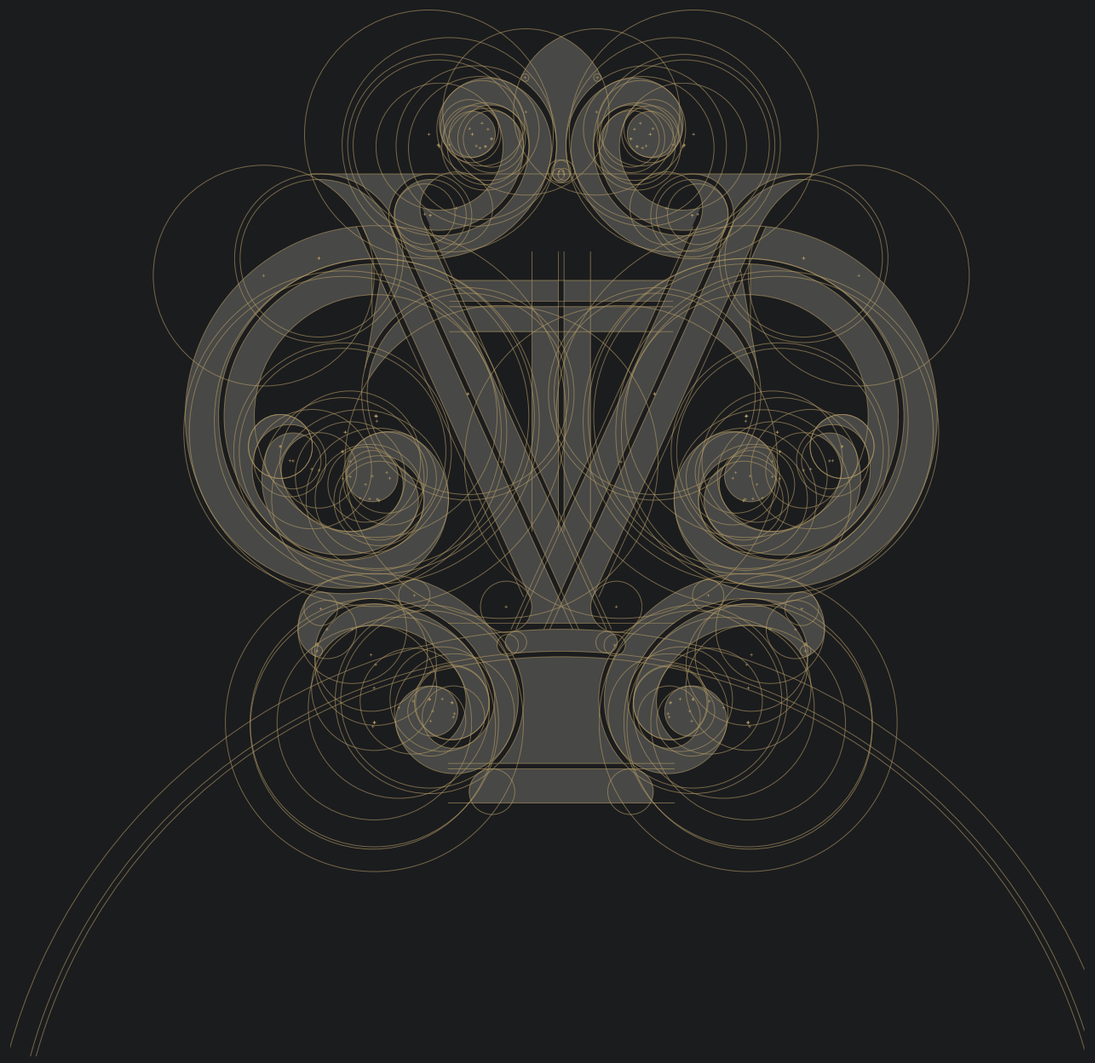
CONSTRUCTION

The drawing

The mark was drawn with compass and ruler. The gold lines are its construction circles; the ivory shape is the finished mark.



01

Circles, not curves

Every curve of the mark is an arc of a circle. Consecutive arcs meet on a shared tangent, so the drawing can be rebuilt with a compass and a ruler.

02

One unit

X is the height of the crown, from its tip to the bottom of its ball. Every dimension in this chapter is a percentage of X.

03

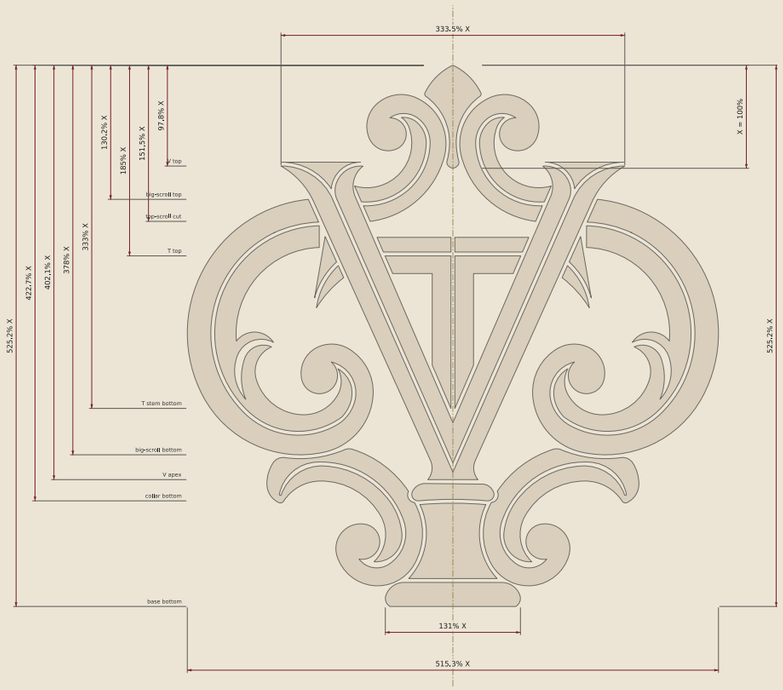
One gap

Wherever two parts of the mark face each other, the hairline between them is the same: 3.8% X.

CONSTRUCTION

Dimensions

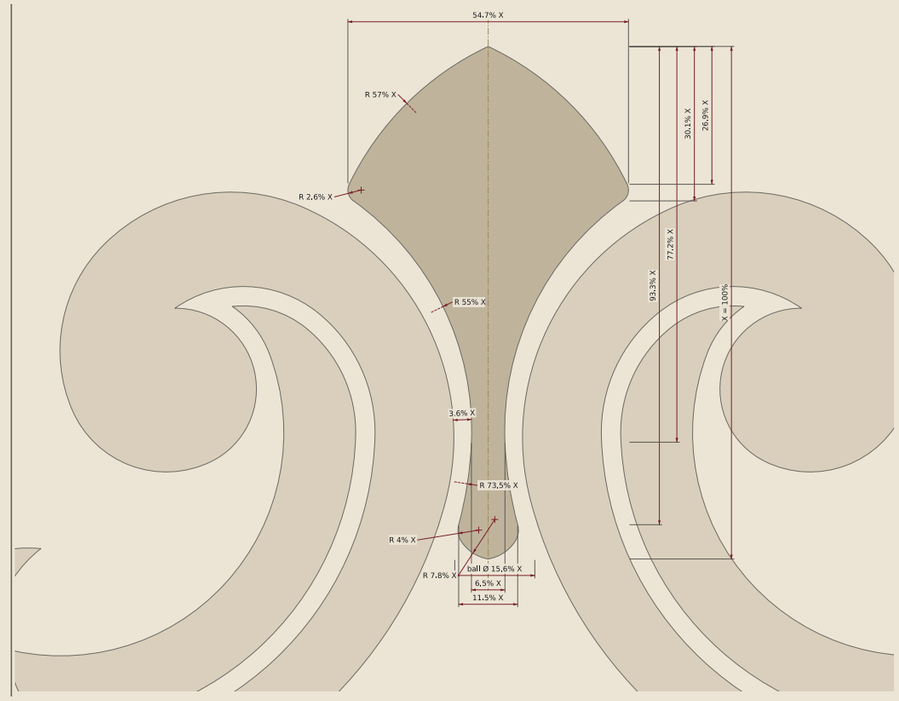
Every value on these sheets is a percentage of X — the height of the crown. Rebuild the mark at any size: value × X ÷ 100.



01 — 08

Overall proportions

X is the height of the crown, from its tip to the bottom of its ball. The mark is 333.5% X wide and 525.2% X tall; every station down the axis — V top, scroll tops, T, collar, base — is measured from the tip of the crown.



02 — 08

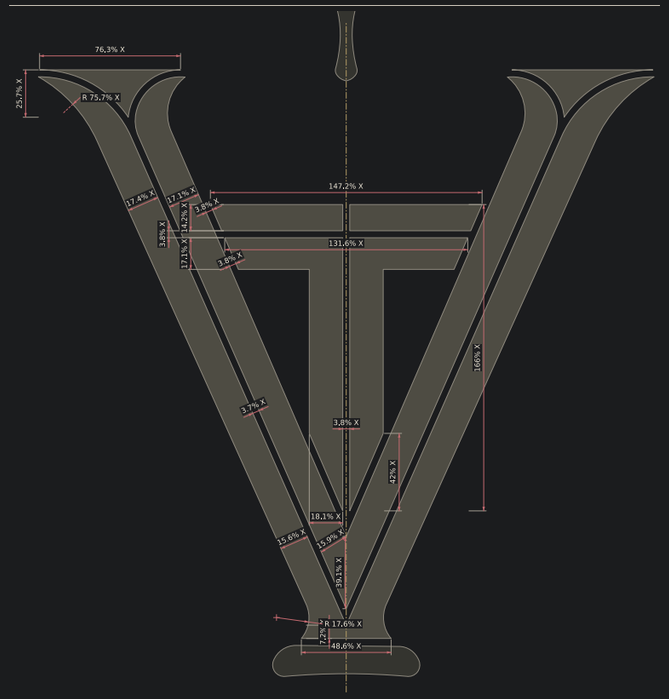
The crown — the unit

The crown is drawn only from circle arcs, the right half a mirror of the left. Its height is the unit for every other value in the mark.

CONSTRUCTION

Dimensions

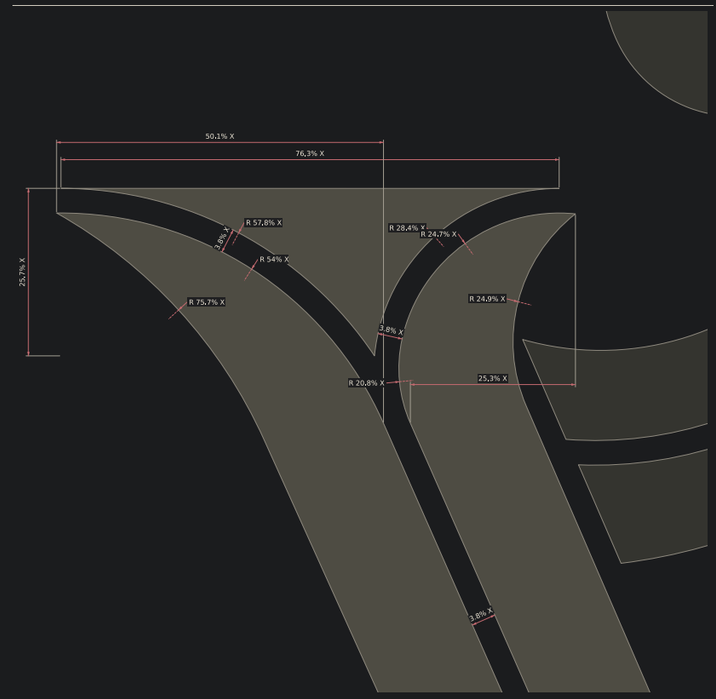
Every value on these sheets is a percentage of X — the height of the crown. Rebuild the mark at any size: value × X ÷ 100.



03 08

V bands, serifs and the T

Band widths are measured square to the arm, at two heights. Every hairline gap — V to V, V to T, T to T, bar to hairline, serif — is 3.8% X. The T is two mirrored halves split by that same gap.



01 08

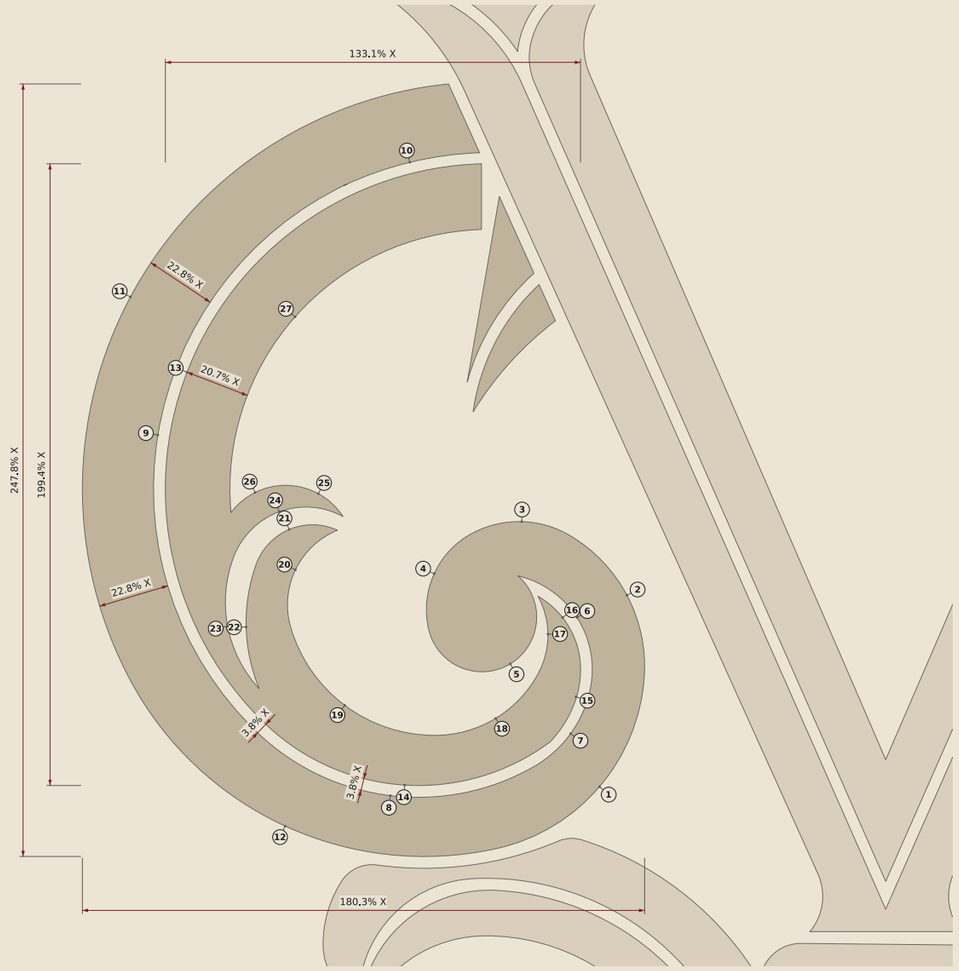
The serif of the V

Two arcs and one straight top edge. The serif arcs share their centres with the arcs that end the V, offset by the hairline gap.

CONSTRUCTION

Dimensions

Every value on these sheets is a percentage of X — the height of the crown. Rebuild the mark at any size: value × X ÷ 100.



05 08

The great scroll

A chain of tangent circle arcs, each numbered with its radius and sweep. The band keeps its width along the run and tapers only as it winds into the eye.

The protected area around the emblem. Nothing may enter it.

2X on every side

No type, rule, page edge, photograph or other logo enters the margin.

Around the full lockup the margin is also 2X, taken from its outer edges.

X = the height of the crown. Emblem = 582.6% × 592.4% X.

MAXIMUM

On a page, a screen or a printed object the lockup is never wider than one third of the surface it sits on. Only the emblem alone may grow beyond that — on the entrance plaque, in a floor inlay, on a wax seal — and always from the vector master, never from an image.

Minimums are provisional: confirm each by printing at descending sizes and set the floor one step above the point where the finest scroll begins to close up.

WIDE SCREEN · 16:9

Never in the bottom-right corner, never against a trimmed edge, never rotated to run up the side of a page, never twice on one surface.

THE MARK IN USE

On photography

The mark sits on the quiet part of an image — a dark, even field — never over the subject. If no such field exists, the mark moves off the photograph.

✓ EMBLEM ALONE, ON THE EVEN PANEL

× OVER THE SUBJECT — THE MARK IS LOST IN THE DETAIL

THE WORDMARK

Awaken Regular

A high-contrast display serif, used for the name and nothing else. The wordmark is set once, spaced by hand, and kept as artwork — it is never typed.

THE VAULT

01

Thick to thin reads as engraving

Extreme stroke contrast is the language of engraved plate, banknote and certificate — things printed precisely because they are valuable.

02

Authority without volume

Wide, unhurried, generously spaced letters. The name occupies space rather than shouting into it.

03

Cut serifs, not written ones

The serifs read as chiselled, not penned — aligning the name with metal, stone, foil and glass.

01

It survives the two hard jobs

Reversed out of a dark ground, and engraved small on metal.

Tagline: General Sans Light, all capitals, tracked +400. Not a script (sentimental), not a geometric sans (a bank), not an art-nouveau face (a bar).

02 10

A frame line of constant thickness, a channel, the black square — 513.7% × 523.5% X — and the monogram, whose box is 0.8% X larger than the square on every side.

THE WORDMARK

THE PERSIAN WORDMARK

Drawn, not typed

A custom logotype, built from the strokes of the English wordmark. It is set once, kept as artwork, and never retyped in any font.

01

Drawn, not typed

We scanned 2,158 Persian typefaces against the name. The nearest, W Graphic, overlaps only 49 %. No font holds these letters — the name exists only as artwork.

02

Engraving contrast

Thick verticals (65.8 % X) over a hairline baseline (13.2 % X): a 5 : 1 contrast, the same thick-to-thin that makes Awaken read as engraved.

03

Latin serifs, Persian body

Every stem ends in a bracketed slab serif, so alef and lam stand like the I and L of THE VAULT, while the kashida keeps the Persian line.

04

Measured against the mark

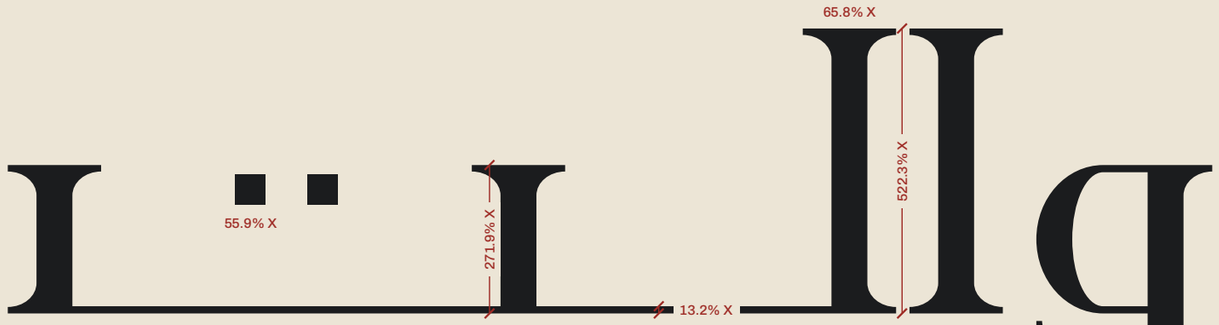
Alef and lam rise 522.3 % X — the height of the emblem's black square. The whole name is 2207.5 % X wide, within 0.3 % of THE VAULT (2212.8 % X).

Reading order right to left: vav · alef · lam, joined by one long kashida to teh — two square dots between its teeth.

THE PERSIAN WORDMARK

X and the crown

Before any letter is drawn there is one unit — X. The emblem, the English name and the Persian name are all measured in it.



01 — 12

X — one unit for both scripts

X is the height of the crown: 1/5.826 of the emblem's width. The emblem is 582.6 × 592.4 % X; the Persian stem is 65.8 % X, the dot 55.9 % X, the hairline baseline 13.2 % X. Scale the lockup to any size: value × X ÷ 100.

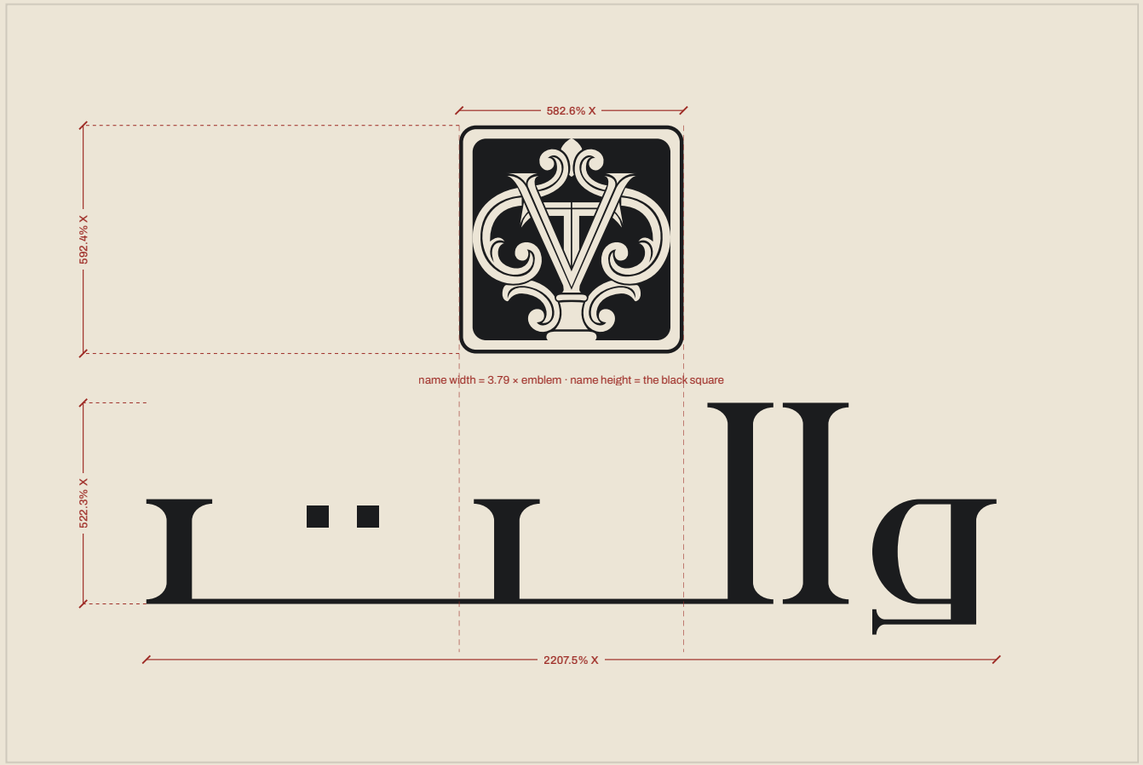
The full lockup

Emblem 582.6 × 592.4 % X; gap to the name 128.0 % X; name 522.3 % X tall and 2207.5 % X wide; vav descends 79.7 % X; gap from baseline to tagline 320.2 % X; tagline 1502.4 % X wide. Every element is centred on one axis.



03 12

The name against the emblem

Alef and lam stand exactly as tall as the black square inside the emblem (522.3 % X); the name is 3.79 times the emblem's width. Never scale one without the other.

THE PERSIAN WORDMARK

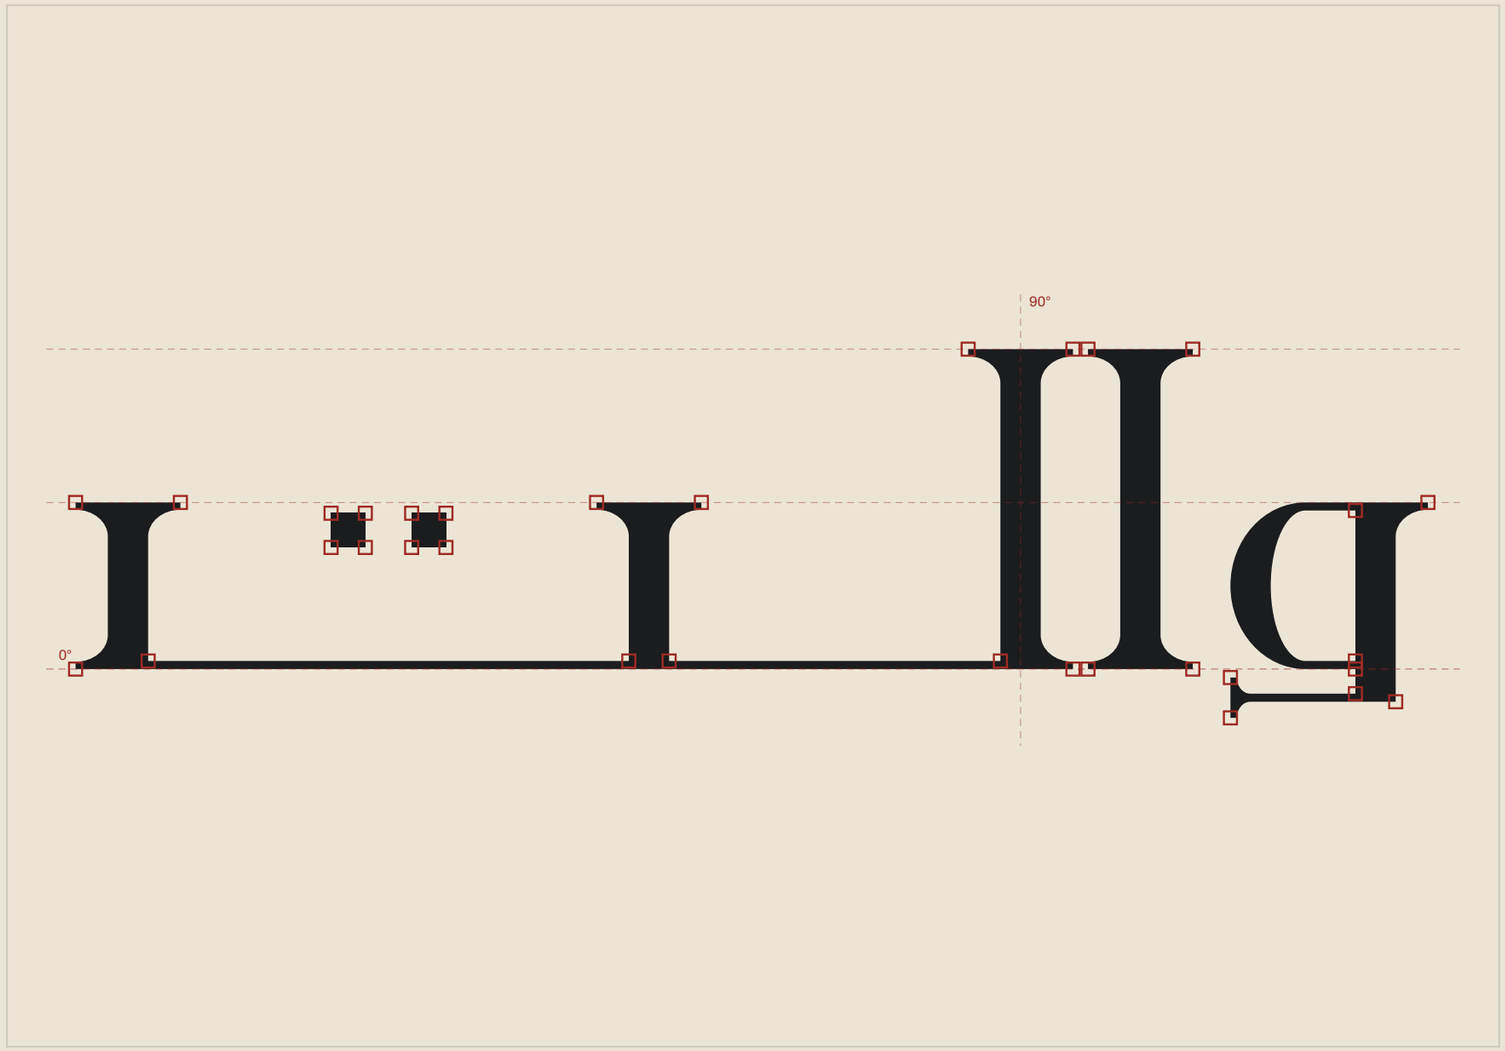
Angles

Where the English name has diagonals — V, A — the Persian name has none. Its only angles are the right angle and the flat line.



07 12

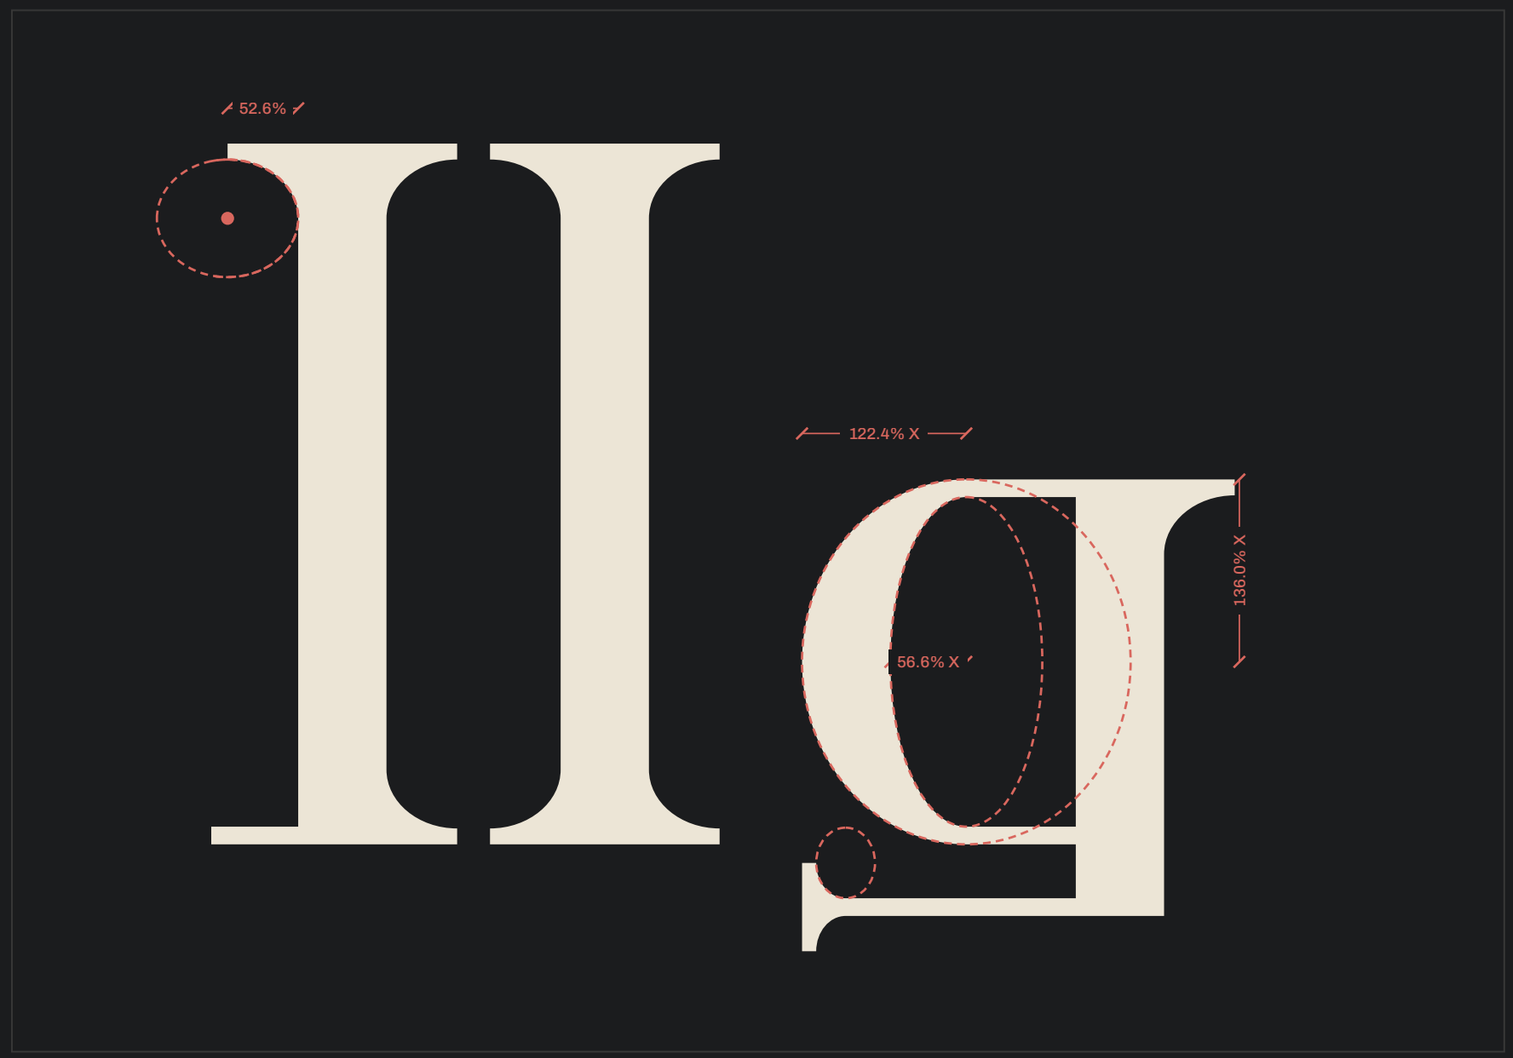
Two angles, nothing else

Every straight edge of the Persian name is horizontal (0°) or vertical (90°). There is no diagonal anywhere in the name. The 32 square corners are marked; everywhere else a straight stroke meets a curve on a shared tangent. The name inherits its calm from this: it stands like a row of columns on one plinth.

THE PERSIAN WORDMARK

Curves

Curves are kept for joints and one bowl. They are drawn as ellipses on fixed centres, never by hand.



08 12

Curves

Only two kinds of curve. 1 · The bracket: a quarter-ellipse 52.6 × 43.8 % X joining every serif to its stem — the same bracket on lam, alef, teh and vav. 2 · The bowl of vav: two half-ellipses on one centre — outer 122.4 × 136.0 % X, inner 56.6 × 122.8 % X — so the bowl is heaviest at its sides and thins to hairlines at top and bottom, like the O of Awaken. A small bracket (21.9 × 26.3 % X) turns the tail up.

THE PERSIAN WORDMARK

Kinship with Awaken

The English name is set in Awaken Regular. The Persian name is drawn to match it stroke for stroke.

SERIF OVERHANG ÷ HEIGHT	0.172	0.101
DIAGONALS	V, A	none
BOWL	O, U — thick sides, thin top	vav — thick sides, thin top

09 12

Kinship, not imitation

The Persian name borrows the logic of Awaken — not its letters. Thick verticals, hairline horizontals, flat bracketed serifs, a bowl that is heavy at the sides: the two names share a stroke, so they can sit on the same plate, card or door and read as one voice in two scripts. The Persian serifs are shorter (0.101 against 0.172 of the height) because Persian letters stand closer together.

THE PERSIAN WORDMARK

The tagline

One tagline for both languages. Under the Persian name it keeps its English letters, size and spacing.

✓ English tagline, centred, 68 % of the name's width.

✕ Never translate the tagline into Persian type.

✕ Never reset it in another weight or tracking.

✕ Never move it closer to the name, or further away. Keep 320.2 % X.

The tagline

WHERE VALUE IS KEPT stays in English and in its own face — General Sans Light, capitals, +400 — beneath the Persian name. It is 1502.4 % X wide (68 % of the name) and 62.7 % X tall, centred on the axis, 320.2 % X below the baseline and 240.5 % X below the tail of vav.

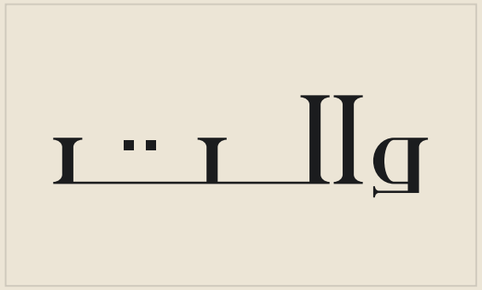
THE PERSIAN WORDMARK

Versions and clear space

Three lockups, one clear-space rule, three minimum sizes.

A · PRIMARY
Emblem, name, tagline. Doors, covers, the first page of anything.

B · WITHOUT TAGLINE
Where the tagline would fall below its minimum size.



C · NAME ALONE
Only where the emblem is already present nearby — a spine, a tab, a second mention.

11 12

Three lockups

A is the rule; B and C are exceptions. The parts never move: B is A without the tagline, C is the name alone. No horizontal lockup of the Persian name exists.

Clear space · minimum size

Keep 2X clear on every side of the lockup — nothing enters the dashed field. Minimum width: A 32 mm in print / 200 px on screen (the tagline stays legible); B 24 mm / 150 px; C 18 mm / 110 px. Below these, use the emblem alone.

THE PERSIAN WORDMARK

Do

Use the artwork as supplied, in the approved colours, with its clear space.

✓ Ivory on Vault Black — the house default.

✓ Vault Black on Ivory — print and paper.

✓ Brass on Vault Black — foil, engraving, metal only.

✓ Ivory on Forest — doors, uniforms, the green rooms.

✓ Ivory on Oxblood — menus and leather.

✓ Version B where the tagline would be too small.

✓ Version C beside an emblem already in view.

THE PERSIAN WORDMARK

Don't

The name is artwork. It is never redrawn, retyped, reshaped or restyled.

✕ Never stretch or squash.

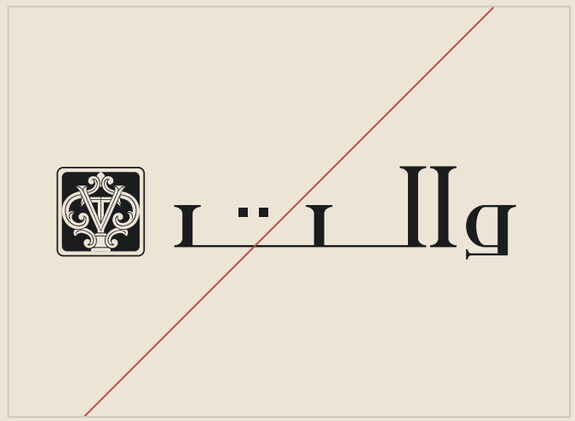
✕ Never outline the letters.

✕ Never retype the name in a font.

✕ Never recolour parts separately.

✕ Never add shadows, bevels or glows.

✕ Never rotate or set on a slant.



✕ Never rearrange the emblem beside the name.

THE PERSIAN WORDMARK

Colour

The Persian lockup takes exactly the colour rules of the English: one colour at a time, Ivory or Vault Black, Brass only as metal.

THE MENU

THE PERSIAN WORDMARK

Bilingual

Two names, one emblem, one unit. The scripts never mix inside one line.

12 12

Side by side · one X

When both names appear on one surface, set the two primary lockups at the same X, side by side, divided by a hairline or by distance (≥ 8X). English on the left, Persian on the right. Neither is ever scaled to ‘look equal’.

Stacked · signage

For doors and plaques: one emblem, the Persian name, THE VAULT, one tagline. The English name sits 128.0 % X under the tail of vav — the same gap as emblem to name — and the tagline keeps its 320.2 % X from the last baseline.

COLOUR

Five principals, one light.

A nocturnal, tonal palette that reads as a set of materials, not a set of paints. Every principal is deep and low-luminance; Ivory is the single light. Each strip is as wide as the colour's share of every surface.

Green leads — Forest and Olive carry the space — wall into textile.

Black holds — The ground under everything: floor, recess, night, screen.

Oxblood signs — The one warm note — a seal, a spine, a single line.

COLOUR

How the five meet

Six resolved pairings. Each is a proportion as much as a pair: the first colour is the field, the second is the edge or the mark.

Forest × Olive

Analogous greens — wall into textile. The primary tonal move.

Forest × Slate

Warm green met by a cool, metal edge.

Black × Oxblood

The accent at full power: one warm mark on the darkest ground.

Oxblood × Forest

Near-complementary — the reason a red seal lifts a green box.

Slate × warm taupe

Cool metal against wood and leather.

The core triad

Black ground, Forest signature, Ivory type — the everyday face.

COLOUR · GROUND

Not a true black but a near-black with a faint cool-blue lean. It is the ground the others stand on — the unmarked door, the night, the strongroom. Because it is barely blue it flatters the greens and the slate without ever going warm or muddy.

An achromatic ground has no meaningful complement — its role is contrast, not hue. Its whisper of blue (hue 220°) keeps it aligned with Slate and the blue-leaning greens rather than the warm Oxblood. Everything else in the palette is measured against this ground.

Slate's complement is a warm taupe (#52423A) — the colour of aged wood and leather, which is why slate metalwork sits so naturally in a panelled, leather-bound room. Its triadic olive (#4A523A) loops straight back to the palette's greens.

The only warm colour and the most saturated — so it must be the rarest. Sealing wax, a library chair, the spine of a ledger. One small mark of it on the darkest ground does more than any large field. Never a surface; always a signature.

Leather	Waxed oxblood leather — library chairs and bindings, the hero
Wax	Sealing wax on every invitation — its finest single use
Velvet	Wine velvet in details only — a cushion, never the sofa
Ribbon	The ribbon of the Key and the page-edge of the ledger

In use — One wall, a door edge, a book wall; wax, spine, ribbon, page edge — small, and one per room.

A warning — Badly executed, Oxblood turns the club into a grandfather's museum. Large surfaces only in material, never flat paint; under yellow light it collapses into dead brown — every lamp's colour temperature is controlled.

On uncoated paper, specify the same Pantone number with the suffix U — it prints lighter and flatter, so dark principals are always run as spot colours, never in four-colour process. Aged Brass lives as true metal or metallic ink (Pantone 871 C; RAL 1036 Pearl gold); its flat process value for screens is close to Pantone 4505 C. Chip colours here are screen approximations of the physical guides.

COLOUR

In space. in print. on screen

Colour is defined in a material before it is defined in a file. Every value above is the translation of a velvet, a leather, a stone or a wax.

IN SPACE

Walls & joinery
Forest, in velvet and matte lacquer — the room's dominant.

Seating & drapery
Olive Slate, two shades deeper in the pile.

Ground & shadow
Vault Black: floors, ceilings, recesses.

Metalwork
Read as Slate — satin, never mirror. Warm metal is aged brass, matte, always a detail.

Accent
Oxblood on a single wall, a door edge, a book wall. One per room, never two in one sightline.

Light
Warm, low, directional. Lit flat and bright the palette loses every advantage.

IN PRINT AND ON SCREEN

Default
Vault Black ground, Ivory type, Forest for rules and the mark.

Day print
Inverted — Ivory ground, Forest type and rules: menus, papers.

Screen, dark mode
Slate or Forest panels on black; Ivory headings.

Seals & edges
Oxblood only, and small — wax, spine, ribbon, page edge.

NEVER

Pure white · bright or glossy gold · greens a step brighter than Forest · two signatures in one frame. Pantone and RAL references are the nearest matches on screen — every one is drawn down on the real stock and checked against the physical swatch before an order.

PICTOGRAMS

Born from the crown

A pictogram is not a small logo. The mark is ornament and memory; a pictogram must be read in a second, from across a room. So the set takes exactly one form from the mark — the blade of the crown — and nothing else.

THE MARK · THE CROWN BLADE, MARKED

01
The crown spade

02
The stem is dropped

03
Closed to a point

The blade is lifted from the master file at the same curves, its stem dropped and its foot closed to a single point. It becomes the head of every figure and the finial of every object. Its size never changes within a sign: one blade is one head.

One borrowed form

Only the blade travels from the mark. No scrolls, no V, no frame, no bands — those belong to the emblem.

Same blade, one size

In a single sign every head and finial is the same blade at the same height: 8 units of 72.

Point down, always

The blade is never turned. It sits upright, closed point to the body or the object it crowns.

The height of the crown blade — 8 units of the 72-unit box. Every figure is measured in heads.

Eight heads tall

From the top of the head to the tip: 8.1 X, the classical canon. The figure is tall, narrow and still.

The lapel

Two shoulder facets fold inward to a V 0.94 X deep — the dinner jacket, without drawing one.

One blade to the floor

Below the waist the body is a single tapering blade, 0.8 X at the waist and 0.2 X at the tip. No legs, no feet, no arms.

The ridge

A single vertical crease runs from the V to the tip. It is drawn in line, cut in flat and raised in brass.

PICTOGRAMS

The facet

Every pictogram is assembled from one operation: a blade. An axis, a profile of half-widths, two mirrored facets meeting on a ridge. Circles, rings and plates are the only other parts — and they too are cut, never rounded off.

01

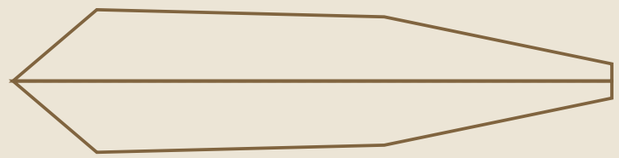
Axis and profile

A straight axis, and a short list of half-widths along it.

02

Two facets

The profile is mirrored; each side is one flat facet.



03

The ridge

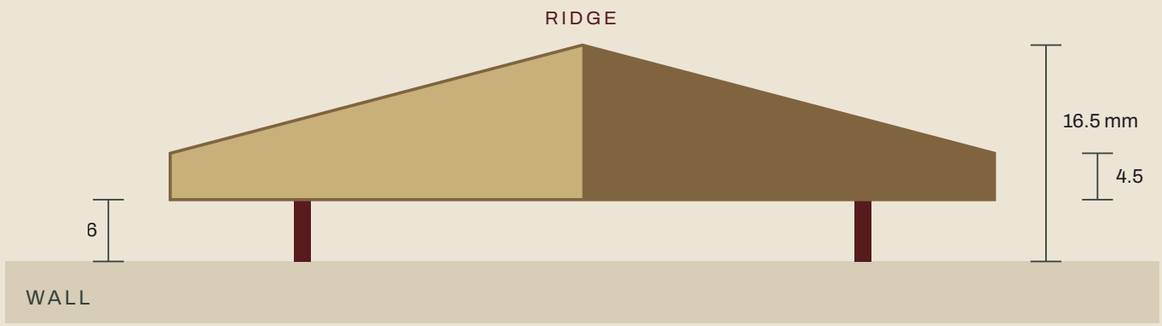
The facets meet on the axis — light on one, shadow on the other.

01

Flat

In one colour the ridge becomes a hairline cut, 0.6 units wide.

SECTION A–A · THE DOOR FIGURE, 200 MM TALL



The facets rise 6.8 mm from edge to ridge over a 4.5 mm plate; the piece stands 6 mm off the wall on hidden studs, so its own shadow draws a second outline. The same section scales with the sign: depth = height ÷ 30.

PICTOGRAMS

The grid

Every pictogram is drawn in a box of 72 units on a 6-unit grid, with the live area inset by 4. Tall forms touch the top and bottom of the live area; wide forms touch its sides. Axes are vertical, horizontal or at 30°, 45° and 60° — nothing in between.

PICTOGRAMS

✓ Alone on the wall

No frame, no plate, no circle behind it. The wall is the ground.

In a frame

Axes stay vertical. A pictogram is never rotated, skewed or flipped for effect.

PATTERNS

From one mark

The seal, repeated

The most ceremonial of the four. It is the mark itself laid out as a field, so it is used only where the house hands something over: the lining of the key box, a wrapped gift, the inside of an envelope. Where it appears, something has been given.

WHERE IT LIVES

NEVER

Never on anything sold, served or thrown away. Never smaller than 70% — the outline closes up.

HOW IT WAS FORMED

The monogram is redrawn as a single gold outline — every solid of the emblem becomes a double line, so the mark turns from a seal into a drawing. It is cut to a square cell: the V and T kept whole, the side scrolls folded into the lower corners, the crown scrolls cropped by the top edge. The cell alternates, like a chequerboard, with an empty cell that carries only the quatrefoil.

CONSTRUCTION

The V, taken apart

The architectural pattern. It carries the mark into stone, metal and leather without showing the monogram at all: what remains is only its geometry. It belongs to the building — the floor of the hall, a plaque, the cover of a book that stays in the house.

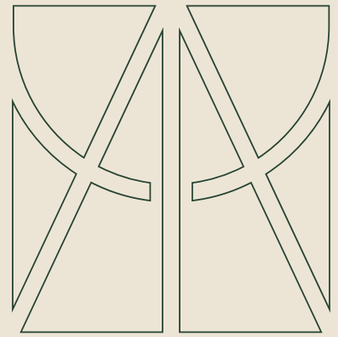
01

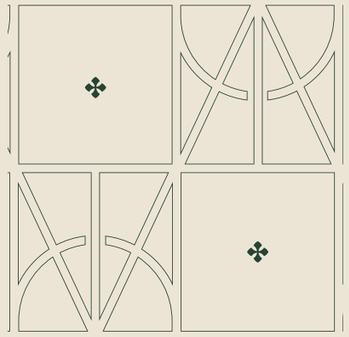
The legs and the arc

02



Split into two half panels

03



Upright, turned, and stepped

HOW IT WAS FORMED

The V is split down its axis. Each leg becomes a half-panel: one straight stroke, crossed by a quarter of the circle that draws the emblem's great scrolls. Two half-panels make one cell. Upright in one row the cell reads as an A; turned in the next it reads as a V. Between them sit plain cells, alternately carrying the seal and the quatrefoil.

The quietest pattern and the one used most. At reading distance it is texture; only in the hand does it show the house. It dresses the everyday surfaces — a plate rim, an envelope lining, a cigar case, a seat — where the full mark would be too loud.

HOW IT WAS FORMED

Two seals are drawn from the emblem. The first is its axis compressed into 5.4 mm: the stem, the two scrolls turned inward to clasp it, and a crown blade at each end. The second is the quatrefoil — four crown blades turned about one point. They alternate on a square diaper grid, each one sitting in the gap of its neighbours.

CHARACTER

NEVER

HOW IT WAS FORMED

The inline of the V — two hairlines running inside each stroke — is straightened and stood upright as a pair of pinstripes 2.1 mm apart. At intervals the pair parts for a quatrefoil held between two pearls. Neighbouring stripes are dropped by half a step, so the quatrefoils never line up across the field.

DIGITAL

Instagram

The grid reads as a magazine: photograph, photograph, a page of words. Stories, reels covers, highlights, the profile and the caption — each with its reason.

INSTAGRAM FEED · GRID 3 × 3

Opening. The door. One address, never a crowd

Our line. The line on Forest

Food, in season. TONIGHT'S FEATURE

Invitation. CORRESPONDENCE

The house. THE GARDEN

Rule. A HOUSE RULE hidden

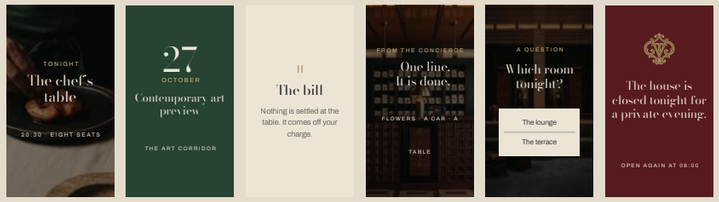
Given. THE KEY. New member

Dessert. THE PATTERN.

The end. AFTER DINNER

Rhythm: photograph, photograph, a typographic tile — so the grid reads as a magazine spread. Every third post is words.

STORIES · 1080 × 1920



TONIGHT — The one thing happening this evening

THE CALENDAR — A date and a room — never a price

A HOUSE RULE — One rule a week, in its own words

CONCIERGE — What the house can arrange

A POLL — Members answer; the house listens

A NOTICE — Said simply, in Oxblood

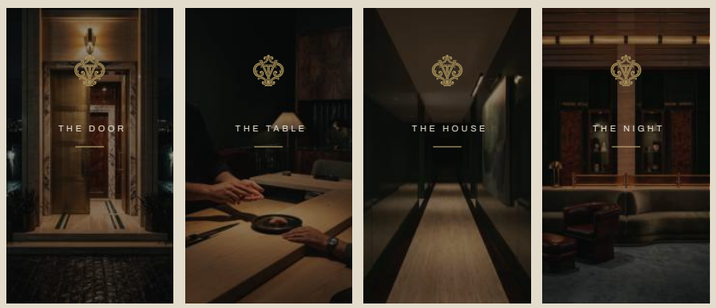
REELS COVERS · 1080 × 1920



Four series, one cover each: the same mark, the same line, the photograph changes. The 3 × 4 crop of the grid keeps the title visible.

HIGHLIGHT ICONS · OUR PICTOGRAMS

Gold pictogram on Forest, the same drawings that are cast in brass on the doors of the house.

The pattern on a screen

Which pattern for which post, how strong on each ground, at what scale, and where it must stop so the photograph and the words stay whole.

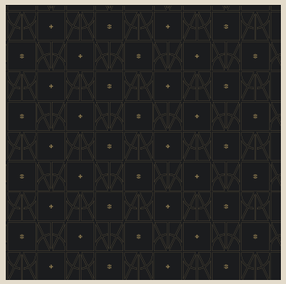
I ONE PATTERN, ONE JOB

01

Monogram Field

MEMBERSHIP & THE HOUSE CARD

Profile covers, the tagline card, anything about belonging. The pattern of the membership card.

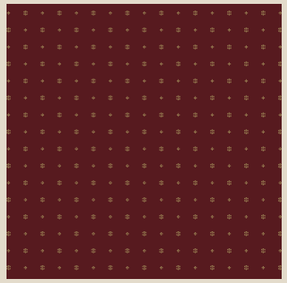


02

Deco V-T Tile

THE CALENDAR

Dates, evenings, the art corridor. The hall floor — where events begin.

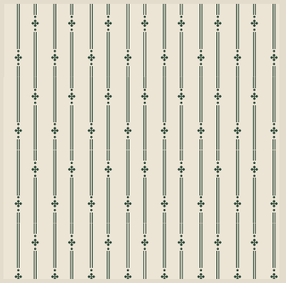


03

Diaper Pin-dot

NOTICES & RULES

Closures, house rules, Oxblood notices. Quiet enough to sit under a sentence.



04

Regency Stripe

FRAMES & TYPOGRAPHY

Borders for photographs, rule cards, reels covers. Never a full field behind a photo.

II STRENGTH BY GROUND

How visible the motif may be on each colour. Above the line it becomes wallpaper; below it, it disappears on a phone.

FOREST
22% · too faint / right / too loud

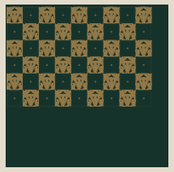
VAULT BLACK
18% · too faint / right / too loud

OXBLOOD
20% · too faint / right / too loud

SLATE
22% · too faint / right / too loud

IVORY
12% · too faint / right / too loud

III SCALE ON A 1080 PX POST



TOO SMALL
Cell under 90 px — reads as noise, moiré on screens.

RIGHT
Two to three repeats across: a pattern, not a texture.

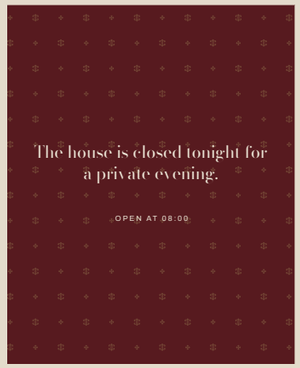
TOO LARGE
One motif fills the post — it becomes a logo, and competes with ours.

IV IN USE

FIELD + PLATE
Pattern at full field; the type sits on a clear plate of the ground colour, 60% of the width.

DATE CARD
Deco tile on Vault Black for every date; the plate carries a hairline in gold.

FRAME
Regency stripe as an 11% border around a photograph. The photograph is never covered.



NOTICE
Pin-dot on Oxblood is quiet enough to read through — the only pattern allowed directly under type.

STORY BANDS
Pattern in the profile and reply zones; the photograph keeps the middle.

RULE CARD
Stripe at 25% on Ivory, the rule on a solid Ivory plate.

IN MOTION

Drift	2% of the width every 6 s, one direction
Reveal	the motif draws in once, 1.2 s, at the start
Loop	seamless — the repeat unit, never a jump
Never	pulse, rotate, zoom, parallax

NEVER

- × Pattern over a photograph
- × Two patterns in one post
- × Pattern behind the mark or the lockup
- × Colours outside the palette
- × Rotated, skewed or cut through a motif
- × Full-strength field behind running text

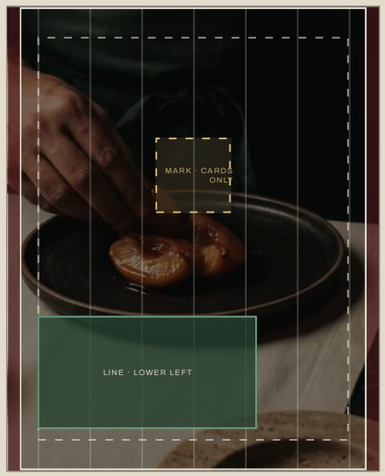
Where words and the mark go

Each format has one place for words and one for the mark, and places where nothing may sit — covered by the app or cut by the grid. Drawn to the pixel.

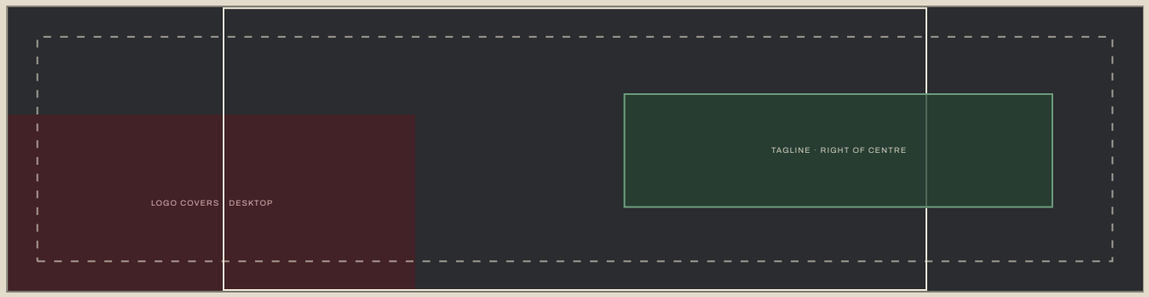
TYPE ZONE · MARK ZONE · NEVER — COVERED BY THE APP OR CROPPED · GRID / MOBILE CROP · MARGIN



FEED POST · 1080 × 1350
Margin 86 px (8%), six columns. Type sits in the lower-left third on photographs, centred on cards. The profile grid crops to 1012 px: nothing within 34 px of the sides.

STORY · 1080 × 1920
Type between 250 and 1580 px, 64 px from the sides. The mark, 180 px, only at the top of that band.

REELS COVER · 1080 × 1920
The grid shows only the middle 1080 × 1440. Title and mark both live inside it, centred.



LINKEDIN COVER · 1584 × 396

X HEADER · 1500 × 500

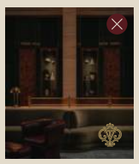
PROFILE · CIRCLE
Mark 60% of the circle, inside the 80% safe ring. Details on the icon board.

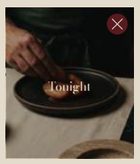
I THE MARK ON A POST

Clear space	a quarter of the mark's width on every side
On a post	180–270 px wide on a 1080 px canvas (17–25%)
Smallest	96 px — below it the scrolls close up
Position	centred on the vertical axis, never in a corner
Colour	Gold on Forest, Black or Oxblood; Forest on Ivory
The lockup	website, invitations and the house card only — never on social posts
Persian name	only in the Persian lockup, never typed beside the mark

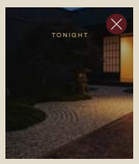
II NEVER PLACED



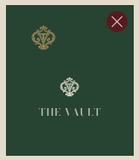
Logo in a corner, as a watermark



Type across the subject's face or hands

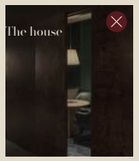


Type in the story's top 250 px or bottom 340 px



Mark and lockup on the same post

Type set on a busy part of a photograph



Anything touching the edge — 0 px margin

POSTING PRINCIPLES

I — No faces of members
Rooms, hands, objects. A member is never identifiable — not even from behind.

II — After the fact
Evenings are shown the next day. Nothing is posted live, no location tag in real time.

III — Never a catalogue
No prices, no menus with figures, no offers, no "book now".

IV — Staff by consent
Chefs and staff only with written consent, at work, never posed.

V — One image, one fact
One photograph per post where possible; carousels for a room or a series only.

VI — The house doesn't argue
Comments are not answered in public. The concierge writes privately.

VII — No hashtags
One location line in the caption, no tags, no mentions of members or guests.

VIII — English, then Persian
Both languages in every caption; the Persian is written, not translated.

BEFORE POSTING

- ☐ Does it belong to a pillar?
- ☐ Is anyone identifiable?
- ☐ Is there a price, an offer, a hurry?
- ☐ Is it one fact, said once?
- ☐ Would the owner sign it?

Shown after the fact. Never sold as a catalogue.

THREE ISSUES AND A LETTER ON THE MARBLE OF THE BAR

32 —— Worth the evening

Worth the evening
The concerts and galleries of the city worth leaving the house for this winter, chosen by the concierge

ahdat Hall on the fourteenth, Roudaki on the twenty-first and Niavaran at the end of the month — the three evenings this season when the house will send its cars out rather than keep its members in.

Each evening is arranged the same way: three rows or a private hour held for members, a car from Maryam Street, and a table at the house afterwards for those who want to talk about it. Seats are asked for in the app; the concierge confirms within the hour.

Below: a viewing in the corridor of the house. Right: the quartet that will play in the corridor on the 8th.

The galleries of the city have rarely been busier. Niavaran opens a painter's first show in a decade; the private galleries of the north of the city show sculpture, photography and the carpets of the south.

For members who would rather stay in, the corridor of the house hangs one work a month, lent by a member or a gallery, and the quartet plays beneath it on the second Saturday.

Worth the evening —— 33

The concert halls
Three nights, three rows, one car

Vahdat Hall, built as the city's opera house, still has the best sound in Tehran; the symphony orchestra plays Shostakovich's fifth on the fourteenth. A week later Roudaki Hall gives a night to Persian classical music — the tar, the kamancheh and a voice.

The house holds three rows for each, sends a car at seven and keeps the long table until one. Listings shown are for layout.

SYSTEM · FORMATS · NEVER · EIGHT BOARDS · TEMPLATES

IN THIS PART

The house advertises only what it is: one object, one line, the name and the street. Eight boards as they were printed, then seven templates that hold any photograph.

02	Formats	From 4 : 5 to 2.2 : 1	300

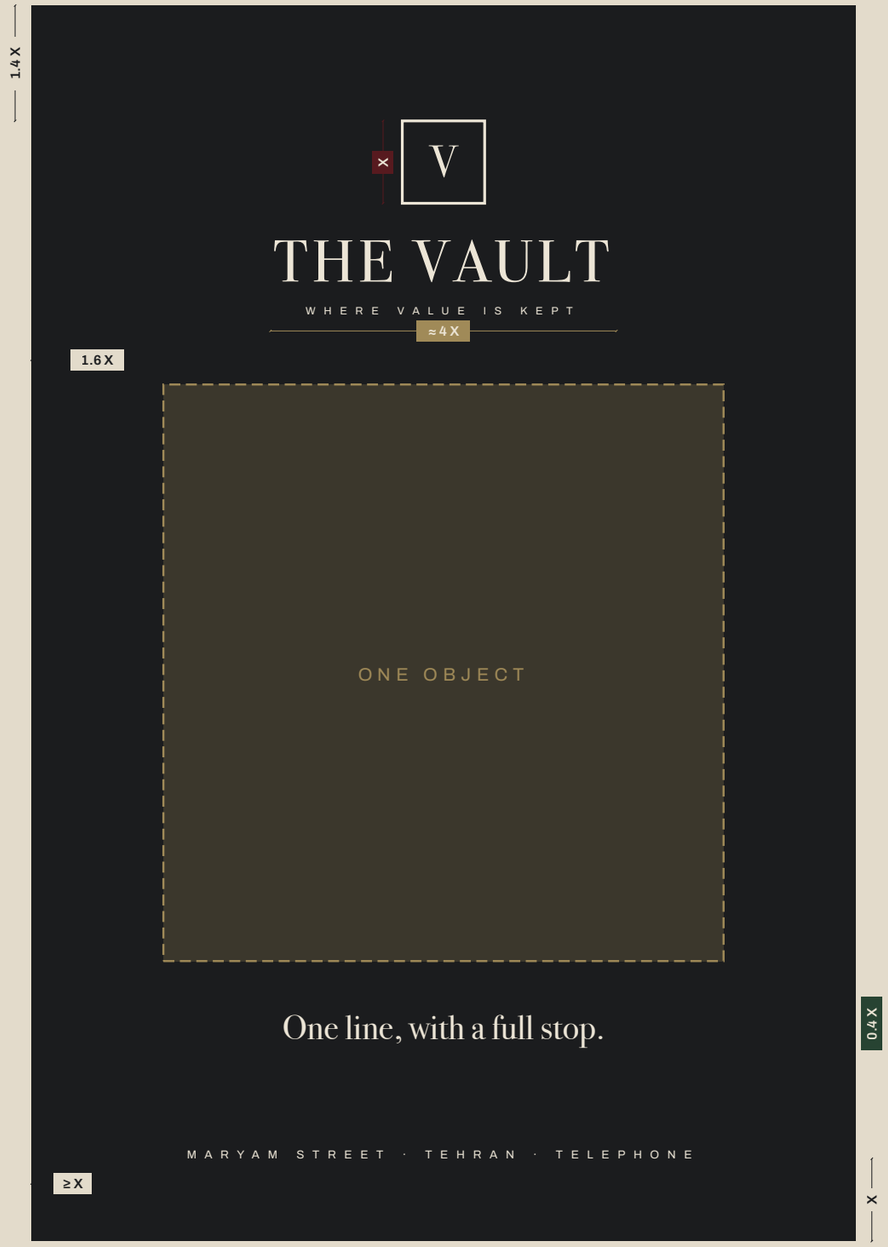
51 The system



FIVE ELEMENTS	Mark, wordmark, tagline, one line, the address. Nothing else is ever written on a board.
ONE OBJECT	One photograph of one object or one moment of the house. Never a collage, never two subjects.
THE UNIT X	Every distance is measured in X, the height of the mark: 1.4 X to the top, 1 X to the edges, 1 X to the foot.
THE LOCKUP	Mark, wordmark and tagline travel together, centred on each other, Ivory on every dark ground.
THE LINE	Bodoni, upper and lower case or — for three words or fewer — spaced capitals. Ends with a full stop.
THE ADDRESS	Archivo capitals, tracked +300, one line: Maryam Street · Tehran · telephone.
COLOUR	Grounds are Vault Black, Forest or a dark photograph. Gold is used for one line at most, and only on flat black.
PLACEMENT	Lockup at the top; at the bottom only when the object fills the top. Never over the object.

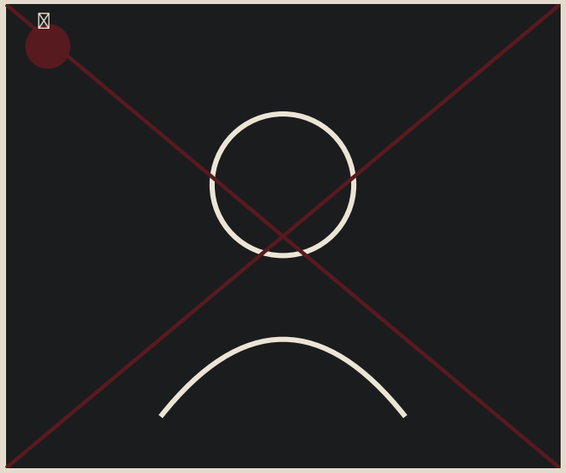
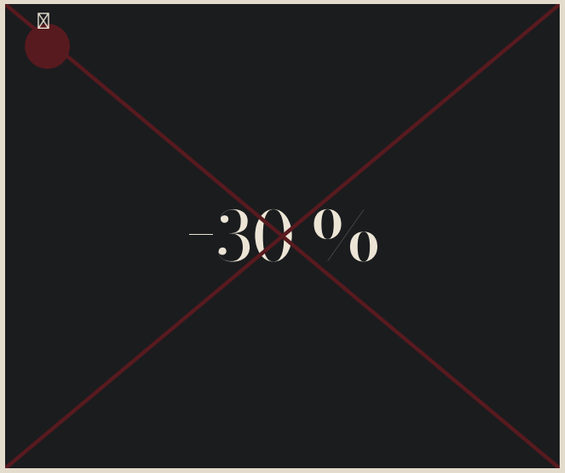
RESOLUTION	Print at 150 dpi at final size for posters; 30–50 dpi for billboards read from 10 m and more.
COLOUR	CMYK coated FOGRA39 for print; sRGB for screens. Gold is printed as Pantone 872 C on posters, as a flat brass-ochre on billboards.
SAFE ZONE	X on every edge. On bus shelters add 40 mm at the bottom for the frame; on screens 5 % on every edge.
FILES	One master per ratio, never stretched: a 2 : 3 board is never squeezed into 4 : 5 — it is re-composed on the grid of X.

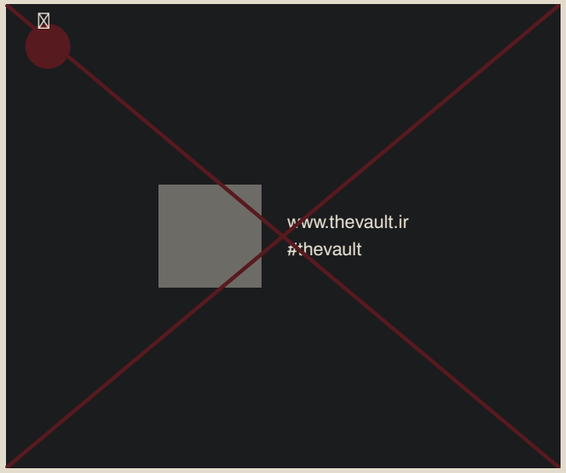
03 Never



A member’s face, or anyone recognisable

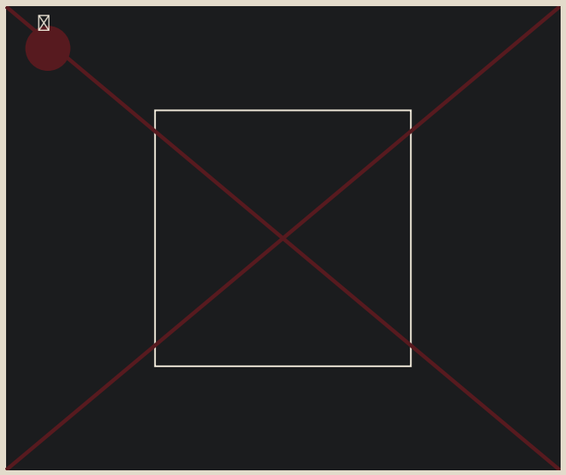


A price, an offer, a discount



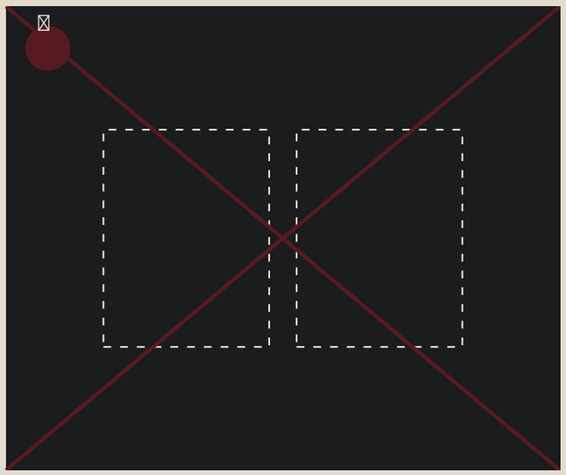
A web address, a QR code, a hashtag

Two lines, or a line without its full stop



The mark larger than 2 X, or the wordmark stretched

Gold type over a busy photograph



A second object, a collage, a frame

An exclamation mark, a superlative

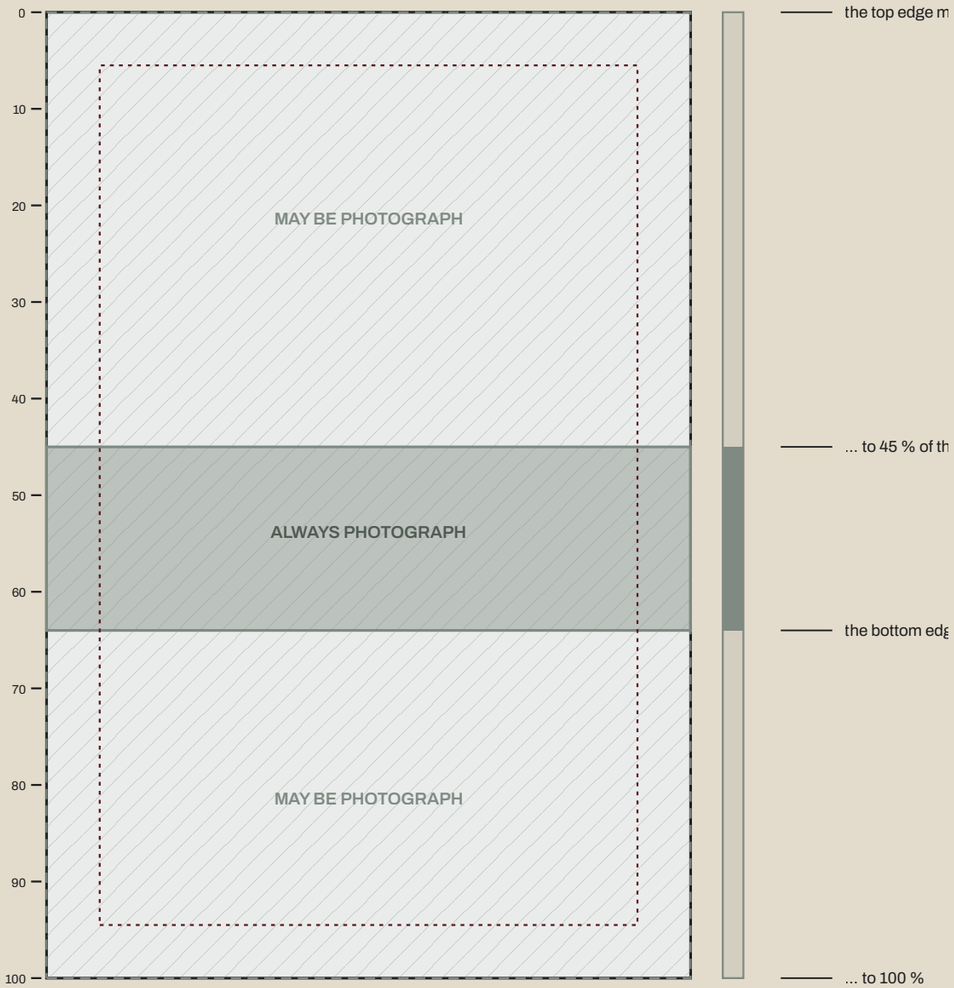
10 Reading a template



RANGES, NOT BOXES	A template does not say where the photograph is; it says how far each element may move. Any picture that keeps to the ranges fits the house.
LIGHT AND SOLID	The light area is the furthest an element may reach. The solid area is the part it must always cover. Between them, the designer decides.
THE LANES	Beside every drawing, one bar per element repeats its range against the scale of the height, 0 to 100 %.
PERCENT AND X	Every position is given in % of the height or the width, so one template serves every size of its ratio. Every size of type is given in X.
QUIET GROUND	Where the logo, the line or the address overlap the photograph, that part of the picture must be dark and calm. If it is not, choose another photograph — never add a box behind the words.
SOURCE FILES	Each template is also supplied as a separate drawing at its real size (billboards at 1 : 10), to be placed under the artwork as a guide layer.

TEMPLATE 01 · 2 : 3RULES FOR ANY PHOTOGRAPH

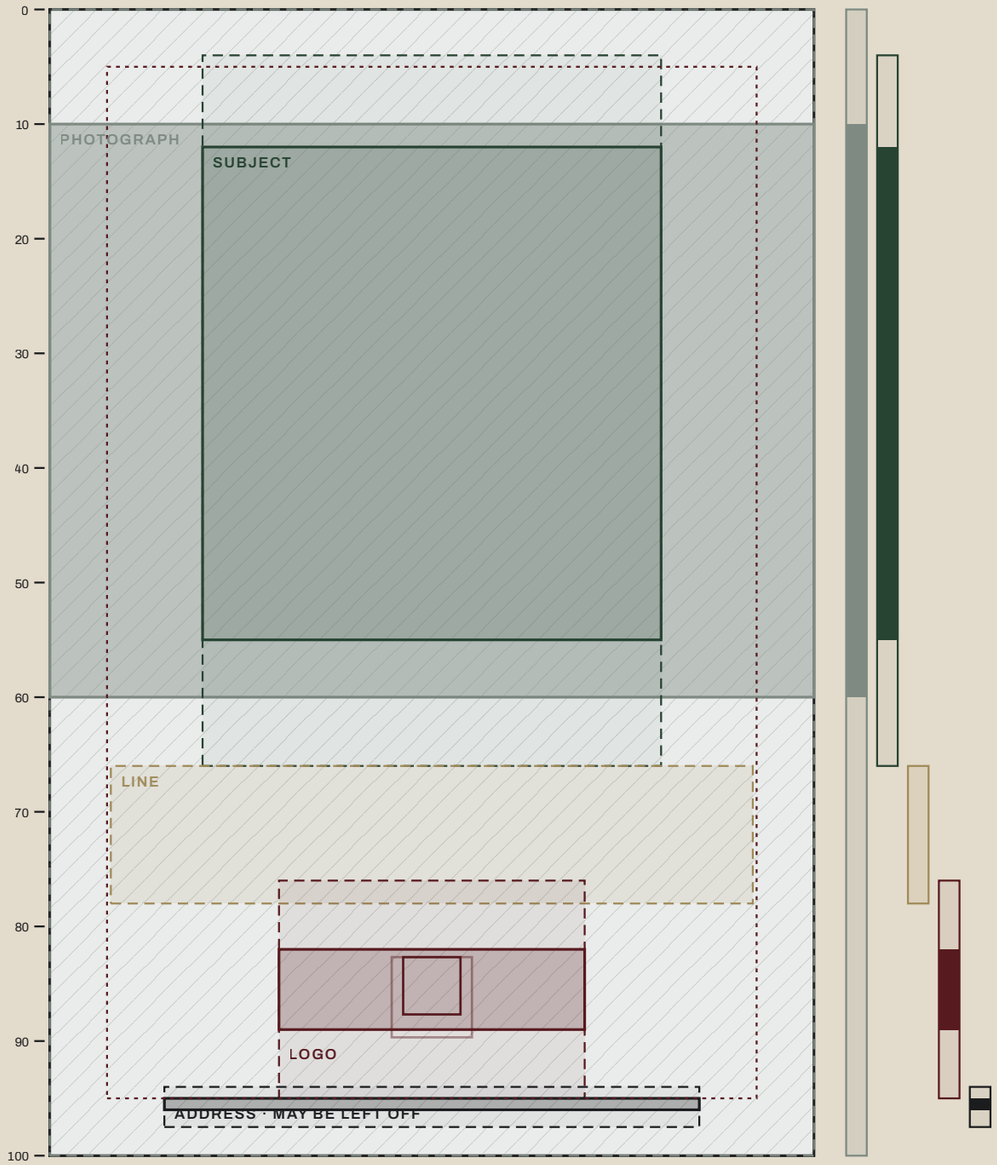
Portrait · lockup at the top

Read from Boards 02 and 04; holds any photograph that keeps to these ranges.

SIZES	Poster 600 × 900 mm · bus shelter 1185 × 1750 mm · lobby frames
THE UNIT X	The height of the mark: 5.5 to 7.5 % of the height — 49.5 to 67.5 mm
SAFE MARGIN	At least X on every edge — 49.5 mm
PHOTOGRAPH	top edge 0–45 % · bottom edge 64–100 % of the height · within 0–100 % of the width
LOGO	top edge 4–13 % · bottom edge 18–32 % of the height · within 28–72 % of the width
LINE	top edge 34–46 % · bottom edge 40–53 % of the height · within 12–88 % of the width
LINE	top edge 70–82 % · bottom edge 76–90 % of the height · within 12–88 % of the width
ADDRESS	top edge 89–92 % · bottom edge 91–97 % of the height · within 15–85 % of the width

- The photograph may run full bleed or stop anywhere inside the two ranges; it may also sit in a window — a keyhole, an arch, a door.
- Wherever the logo or the line falls on the photograph, that part of the picture must be dark and quiet: a wall, a shadow, soft light.
- The line takes one of its two places — under the logo, or at the foot above the address — never both, never over the subject.
- Mark, wordmark and tagline are one block: the block is about 4 X wide and 3.5 X tall, centred on the width.

T2 Portrait · lockup at the foot



TEMPLATE 02 · 2 : 3RULES FOR ANY PHOTOGRAPH

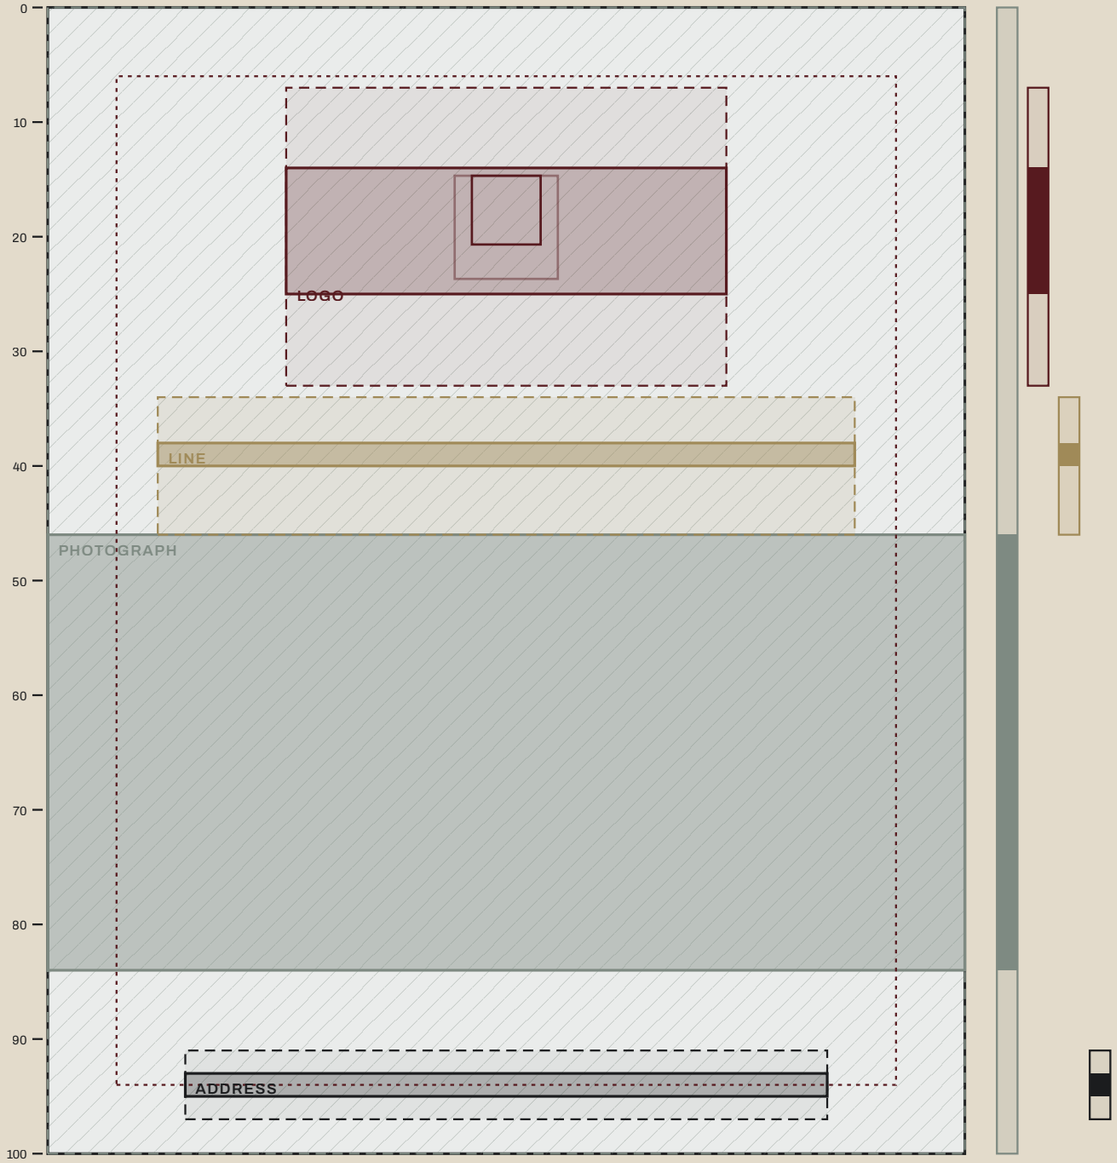
Portrait · lockup at the foot

Read from Board 03; holds any photograph that keeps to these ranges.

SIZES	Poster 600 × 900 mm · bus shelter · when the subject fills the top
THE UNIT X	The height of the mark: 5 to 7 % of the height — 45 to 63 mm
SAFE MARGIN	At least X on every edge — 45 mm
PHOTOGRAPH	top edge 0–10 % · bottom edge 60–100 % of the height · within 0–100 % of the width
SUBJECT	top edge 4–12 % · bottom edge 55–66 % of the height · within 20–80 % of the width
LINE	top edge 66–72 % · bottom edge 72–78 % of the height · within 8–92 % of the width
LOGO	top edge 76–82 % · bottom edge 89–95 % of the height · within 30–70 % of the width
ADDRESS	top edge 94–95 % · bottom edge 96–97.5 % of the height · within 15–85 % of the width

- Use this only when the subject fills the upper half; the logo then moves down, it is never placed over the subject.
- From the line down, the photograph must be dark and even — or end, and give way to a flat Black or Forest ground.
- The line sits between the subject and the logo, in spaced capitals when it has three words or fewer.
- This is the only layout in which the address may be omitted.

T3 Portrait · 4 : 5



TEMPLATE 03 · 4 : 5RULES FOR ANY PHOTOGRAPH

Read from Board 00; holds any photograph that keeps to these ranges.

SIZES	Print 400 × 500 mm · Instagram 1080 × 1350 px
THE UNIT X	The height of the mark: 6 to 9 % of the height — 30 to 45 mm
SAFE MARGIN	At least X on every edge — 30 mm
PHOTOGRAPH	top edge 0–46 % · bottom edge 84–100 % of the height · within 0–100 % of the width

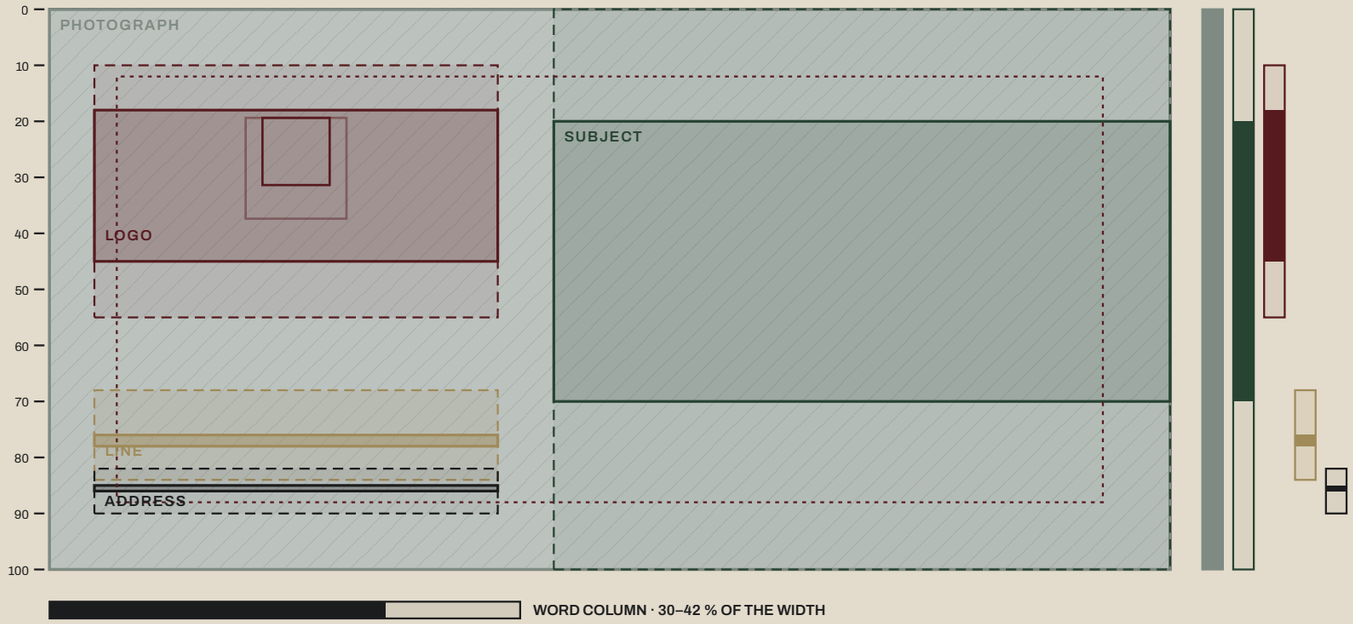
ADDRESS	top edge 91–93 % · bottom edge 95–97 % of the height · within 15–85 % of the width

- The shorter frame leaves less sky: the logo and the line together take the top 33 to 46 %, the photograph the rest.
- An object on a flat ground is the safest picture here — the empty ground is the quiet area.
- On a light surface the address is set in Vault Black; on a dark one in Ivory.
- For Instagram the same layout is used at 1080 × 1350 px; keep 5 % clear at the foot for the interface.

11 Landscape · photograph, words on the dark side



TEMPLATE 04 · 2 : 1RULES FOR ANY PHOTOGRAPH

Landscape · photograph, words on the dark side

SIZES	Billboard 6 × 3 m · light-box 3 × 1.5 m
THE UNIT X	The height of the mark: 12 to 18 % of the height — 360 to 540 mm
SAFE MARGIN	At least X on every edge — 360 mm
PHOTOGRAPH	top edge 0 % · bottom edge 100 % of the height · within 0–100 % of the width

ADDRESS	top edge 82–85 % · bottom edge 86–90 % of the height · within 4–40 % of the width
WORD COLUMN	30 to 42 % of the width

- Choose a photograph with one dark, empty side; that side becomes the word column, 30 to 42 % of the width.
- The column may be on the left or on the right; the subject always lives on the other side.
- The logo, the line and the address are centred on the column, not on the board.
- If the photograph has no empty side, it belongs to the split layout, not to this one.

15 Landscape · split, flat panel and photograph

SIZES	Billboard 5.4 × 3 m · wall wraps
THE UNIT X	The height of the mark: 12 to 16 % of the height — 360 to 480 mm
SAFE MARGIN	At least X on every edge — 360 mm

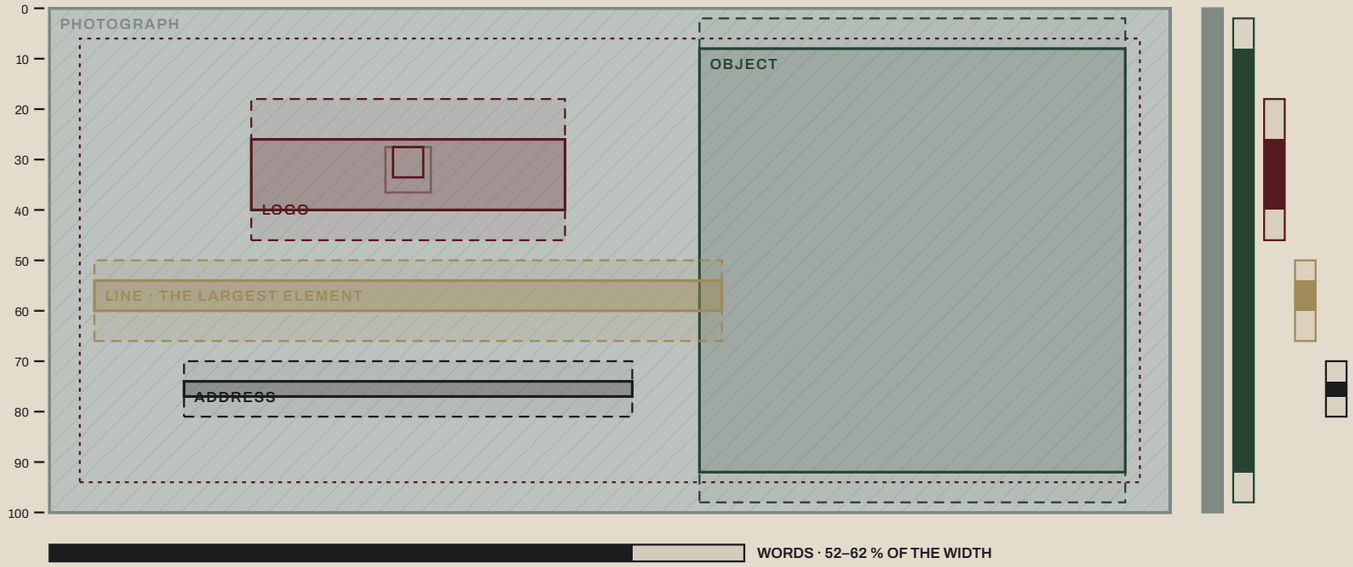
LINE	top edge 74–82 % · bottom edge 82–90 % of the height · within 3–98 % of the width
PANEL	33 to 45 % of the width

- A flat Black or Forest panel, 33 to 45 % of the width, a straight vertical cut — never a gradient.
- Any photograph can sit on the other side, edge to edge on three sides; it needs no quiet area of its own.
- The logo and the address always stand on the panel, centred on it.
- The line may cross into the photograph only at the foot, and only where the picture is dark.

T6 Landscape · wide board, object to one side



TEMPLATE 06 · 2.2 : 1RULES FOR ANY PHOTOGRAPH

Landscape · wide board, object to one side

Read from Board 06; holds any photograph that keeps to these ranges.

SIZES	Highway billboard 10 × 4.5 m · bridge banners
THE UNIT X	The height of the mark: 6 to 9 % of the height — 270 to 405 mm
SAFE MARGIN	At least X on every edge — 270 mm
PHOTOGRAPH	top edge 0 % · bottom edge 100 % of the height · within 0–100 % of the width

ADDRESS	top edge 70–74 % · bottom edge 77–81 % of the height · within 12–52 % of the width
WORDS	52 to 62 % of the width

- One object, standing at nearly full height in the outer 35 to 40 % — left or right.
- The rest of the picture must be one even surface: plaster, leather, cloth, a wall.
- Read from a car: the line is the largest element and is read first; the logo is small above it.
- Logo, line and address share one vertical axis.

17. Screen · photograph above, panel below

Screen · photograph above, panel below

Read from Board 07; holds any photograph that keeps to these ranges.

SIZES	Digital screen 1920 × 1080 px · 3840 × 2160 px · DOOH
THE UNIT X	The height of the mark: 9 to 12 % of the height — 97 to 130 px
SAFE MARGIN	At least X on every edge — 97 px
PHOTOGRAPH	top edge 0 % · bottom edge 56–72 % of the height · within 0–100 % of the width
FLAT PANEL	top edge 56–72 % · bottom edge 100 % of the height · within 0–100 % of the width
SUBJECT	top edge 3–8 % · bottom edge 48–58 % of the height · within 10–90 % of the width

ADDRESS	top edge 88–90 % · bottom edge 92–95 % of the height · within 22–78 % of the width

- The photograph takes the top 56 to 72 %; a flat Forest or Black panel takes the rest.
- The subject must end above the seam, so the mark can stand on the seam without touching it.
- The mark is the only element allowed to cross the seam; the words stay on the panel.
- 5 % clear on every edge; the board holds still for eight seconds, no motion, no sound.

T8 Before a board goes to print

01 The photograph

- [ ] One object or one moment of the house — never a collage, never two subjects.
- [ ] No face that can be recognised; hands, backs and motion blur are allowed.
- [ ] The areas under the logo, the line and the address are dark and calm.

02 The template

- [ ] The ratio of the board is matched to one of the seven templates; nothing is stretched.
- [ ] Every element sits inside its range; the solid part of each range is covered.
- [ ] X is measured, and the mark is between its smallest and largest size.

03 The words

- [ ] Five elements only: mark, wordmark, tagline, one line, the address.
- [ ] The line ends with a full stop; three words or fewer may be spaced capitals.
- [ ] Ivory on every dark ground; gold for one line at most, and only on flat black.

01 The file

- [ ] CMYK coated FOGRA39 for print, sRGB for screens; Pantone 872 C for gold on posters.
- [ ] 150 dpi at final size for posters, 30–50 dpi for billboards read from 10 m and more.
- [ ] Bleed 3 mm on posters, 30 mm on billboards; text kept inside the safe margin of X.

Uniforms

DRESS CODE OF THE HOUSE

DRESS CODE

The staff are the first thing a member sees and the last thing they remember. They wear the house, never themselves.

ONE CLOTH, MANY ROLES	Every uniform is cut from the house cloths: charcoal wool-silk, Vault Black gabardine, Forest wool and oxblood leather. No other colour is worn on the floor.
THE PATTERN, INSIDE	The patterns live where only the wearer sees them — linings, under-collars, cuffs, tie and pocket square. Outside, the cloth is plain.
THE MARK	One mark per person, never larger than 18 mm: embroidered on the left breast, or a gold pin. Security and the door wear none.
BY ROLE	Door and valet: black overcoat, gloves. Hosts: wrapped jacket or dark suit. Waiters: waistcoat and long apron. Kitchen: forest jacket. Concierge: long black jacket.
GROOMING	Hair off the collar, no visible logos, no jewellery beyond a watch and a ring; black leather shoes, polished every shift.
CARE	Every uniform is issued in three sets, cleaned by the house and replaced every eighteen months; the name is never printed on it.
